Extreme Cold Is Moderating: Night Low 39

Cold weather, although lacking the extremity of that experienced earlier in the week, still was the portion of Edmonton residents Friday morning when they proceeded to work in exactly the same temperature as they had the previous morning, 39 below zero.

Friday afternoon, however, there appeared to be some ray of hope as the thermometer had climbed grudgingly by press time to 22 below. This was a higher recording than at any time since last Monday.

So little deviation has there been during the last 48 hours that the maximum and minimum temperatures for Friday morning read precisely the same: Maximum 30 below, minimum 39 below.

Temperature at 11 a.m. Friday morning was city, 31 below, airport 26 below.

Seven Brothers in Armed Services, Eighth Disappointed at Rejection

By JACK DELONG

If George Sutherley of Ashmont, hadn't been rejected on medical grounds, when he tried to enlist in the Canadian Active Army here Friday, the Sutherley family would have had had sufficient strength in the armed forces of Canada to form a fighting unit of its own.

So George Sutherley, who is about 22 years of age, was a badly disappointed young man, when the examining physicians shook their head after looking him over.

Seven brothers of George already serve Canada and the Empire in the armed forces. And the father of this small army of fighting men George Sutherley, Sr., is himself a veteran of two wars. He served in the First Great War and the Boer War.

George, senior, is also badly disappointed that he too is unable to pass the medicos for service in this war.

But of those serving in the forces now there are William, Jack and Cecil, on active service with the Canadian Army overseas. Peter is serving with the Canadian Engineers in Canada, and Harold is with the Royal Canadian Artillery. Sam and Owen are in the R.C.A.F.

George isn't going to give up. He's going to try again later. Perhaps the doctors will have relaxed a bit then.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—Word of the fall of Tripoli was expected at any hour late today with Allied radio sources reporting the British 8th Army blasting past the main defences of Benito Mussolini's "jewel city" and into the blazing suburbs of the town.

Cairo sources said that a flash on capitulation of Tripoli was imminent and it was evident that Marshal Erwin Rommel had abandoned the city except possibly for rearguard action.

A Cairo radio report that Castel Benito the great Axis airdrome only 10 miles south of Tripoli, was almost certainly in British hands raised a possibility that British advance guards had already entered the city itself.

CONCENTRATE FORCES

Leaving Tripoli to its fate, the Axis was concentrating heavily in Tunisia where two German columns with strong tank support were backing at Allied lines southwest of Pont Du Fahs.

The German objective appeared to be to secure the Tripolitania-Tunisia corridor to ease Rommel's task in re-concentrating his available troops in northeast Tunisia and also, if possible, to press back the Allies from forward bases of considerable value to their ultimate all-out offensive.

One of the German columns was reported halted before Robaa, 22 miles southwest of Pont du Fahs. But the other was still moving forward in a threat to Gussellia, about 25 miles south and slightly east.

HEAVY AIR ATTACKS

Allied planes were carrying out almost continuous attacks on Axis road movements and reported that at least 85 Axis vehicles were knocked out.

Air of Expectancy and Optimism Decisions on Allied War Strategy For 1943 Are Believed in Making

By E. C. DANIEL

LONDON, Jan. 22.—(CP)—Decisions on the United Nations' 1943 world strategy are believed here to be in the making at the moment.

Topping the list are thought to be:

1—Creation of a genuine Allied war council including representatives of Britain, the United States, Soviet Russia and China.

2—Quick settlement of the North African political squabble and consolidation of the British and American in North Africa with the view to future operations designed for the opening of a second front in Europe.

3—Co-ordination of the efforts of all of the major United Nations for simultaneous air, sea and land drives in 1943 to finish off the Axis inside Europe before the end of the year if possible, or at any rate in 1944, and then turn their full power against Japan.

4—A concerted campaign on the seven seas to put the Allies on the offensive in the last element in which they still are on the defensive—undersea warfare.

STEPS BEING TAKEN

An unusual air of expectancy and optimism in high quarters despite the political and military tribulations in North Africa is causing the belief to grow in London that such comprehensive steps have been or are being taken.

Last Train From Berlin

WORLD ENEMY NUMBER ONE

BEFORE the Russian campaign began, Roosevelt had already displaced Churchill as the Nazis' "World-Enemy Number One"; Stalin himself never had a chance for a high place in the Nazi hate-scale. After the beginning of the Russian war, German bitterness against the "White Peril from the Ghettos of Washington" began surpassing itself on each successive day, which, if you know the Nazis, is no small achievement.

H. K. SMITH

The grounds for the white hot intensity which Nazi and German hate for America attained are not hard to divine.

The strength of Nazi foreign policy is expressed in the slogan: Divide and Conquer; dope one nation with a promise of security and crush its neighbor; then promise a third neighbor safety and crush the second, and so on, ad infinitum et ad nauseam. But President Roosevelt proved immune to opiate. He branded each false promise for what it was, and proceeded to gird America's loins as well as possible in view of the difficulties in his path.

Another Nazi tactic has been to drive the thin edge of a wedge very subtly between a nation and its independence in trade, or the seas, or otherwise, and when the nation yielded, to drive the wedge in further and further, until the appointed victim was too weak and dependent to resist the final blow which robbed it of all possibility of self-defence, making it finally a Nazi colony. This, too, Roosevelt rejected. Each petty challenge the Nazis issued he paid back, with interest. When they approached American ships, he ordered battle patrols to go into the Atlantic. When they fired on his ships, he armed them. And when they sank American vessels, he ordered American warships to answer the fire, and then to fire on sight.

The hate which Roosevelt's "impertinence" generated among governing Nazis was not like the hatred of the Jews; it was no fake, but the real thing. Day after day, in the two main press conferences, and in a third, which was instituted at that time, Nazi spokesmen grew apoplectic with rage at the mention of the name of Roosevelt. The various Berlin papers began in October, like hounds unleashed, to outbid one another to find new, more vicious

Heavy Damage Result of Fire At Saint John

$350,000 Loss

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Jan. 22.—(CP)—Damage estimated at $350,000 was caused by an early-morning blaze that gutted two hotel buildings and a large stone structure, leaving the unscathed Bank of Nova Scotia building standing as a lone sentinel amid devastation at Charlotte Street and King Square—the heart of the Saint John business district.

The two King Square hotels also housed two restaurants and two barber shops, while the stone structure on Charlotte Street — first home of the Y.M.C.A. in Saint John — contained a bowling alley, a dance hall and a clothing store. Other buildings were damaged by fire, water and smoke.

BANK UNTOUCHED

The blaze started soon after midnight in the rear of Dan's Restaurant on Charlotte Street, destroyed the building and damaged the Canadian Stores Limited groceteria nearby, then cut diagonally across the corner to buildings on King Square, without touching the bank building on the intersection.

Several buildings, including the Edward hotel and the Labor Hotel, were destroyed, but all the occupants escaped safely.

Damage was estimated at "Hundreds of thousands of dollars." The only person known to be injured at all seriously was a fireman who suffered a broken leg.

The blaze started in the rear of a restaurant on adjoining Charlotte street and then spread through buildings along King Square.

The new Bank of Nova Scotia building, although surrounded by fire, was undamaged.

Dismissal of Car Motorman Now Approved

Leo Paradis, motorman operating the street car which turned over on its side at the 97 avenue and 107 street intersection on Thursday morning of last week, will be dismissed from the civic service, Paradis, who has been under suspension since the accident, will be notified of this decision immediately.

Recommendation of his dismissal was made in a report by Thomas Ferrier, street railway superintendent, to the city commissioners, and a letter of their concurrence in the recommendation was forwarded to Mr. Ferrier Friday.

The reports on the accident compiled by Mr. Ferrier, and S. C. Gosling, city claims agent, have been submitted to Chief of Police Matthew Blackwood for examination and such action as in the judgment of the crown prosecutor, the evidence indicates.

In his report to the city commissioners Mr. Ferrier states that "An inspection of the equipment on car number 65 after the accident shows that all parts were in good order, and we may say that this is further indicated by the fact that a normal service stop was made just one block before the operator allowed the car to get out of control.

Changes Made In Selective Service Rules

At Ottawa

By JACK WILLIAMS

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—(CP)—New selective service regulations providing for compulsory transfer in civilian employment of persons in age groups subject to military service were announced today by Labor Minister Mitchell.

The revised selective service civilian regulations, which are effective immediately, consolidate existing regulations and give new powers to the labor minister to cope with the armed forces and other government departments and make recommendations for co-ordination of manpower programs.

The compulsory transfer for civilians may be applied to persons belonging "to an age class or part of an age class which has been designated by proclamation" as subject to military service. The minister may order the employer of such persons to give the employee two weeks notice if it is considered he can contribute more effectively to the war effort in another job.

Another change is that only those

Vancouver Fuel Shortage Acute

VANCOUVER, Jan. 22.—(CP)—Utilization of idle loggers as well as soldiers in wood-cutting measures aimed at alleviating Vancouver's fuel crisis was suggested today by Harold Winch, C.C.F. leader in British Columbia, as he summoned C.C.F. members of the legislature to a meeting on the problem.

Announcement that 4 soldiers would be made available for cutting and gathering bushwood was made by Pacific Command.

More and more householders report their supplies of fuel exhausted or nearly so. The B.C. Electric Railway Company warned residents of the outlying Dunbar and Point Grey districts the problem of keeping gas pressure was the worst yet, owing to heavy consumption last night, and that cooking would be extremely difficult and perhaps impossible tonight.

Owing to transportation difficulties the milk shortage here intensified with dairymen predicting little more than 30 per cent of Vancouver's milk requirements would be met today.

MOSCOW, Jan. 22.—Russia's winter offensive today squeezed tighter around the remnants of 22 trapped Nazi divisions before Stalingrad, slashed at the widening relief corridor below Leningrad and advanced strongly in the Caucasus and Don sectors.

How many Germans remain in the Stalingrad trap is not known but it was estimated that they are only in the tens of thousands where a few weeks ago they were estimated at about 225,000 men.

A Soviet communique reported that west of Stalingrad futile Nazi counter-attacks were repulsed and waves of Russian troops swept forward to capture an important German strong point and kill more than 400 Germans in a single engagement.

GERMAN ADMISSION

The German high command, apparently preparing the German public for the loss of the Stalingrad army, admitted today that these troops were closely encircled and that the Russians had broken into their positions to a depth of several kilometres. The high command also reported a general Russian break-through in progress at the south end of the long eastern front and powerful Russian attacks south of Lake Ladoga.

With Russian vanguards now operating some 200 miles west of Stalingrad the plight of the trapped Nazi forces was believed becoming more desperate each day. They are locked in an area of constantly dwindling size as Soviet attcks from every direction bit harder and harder into their positions.

Minister Sees Hope of Strike Being Settled

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—(CP)—Labor Minister Mitchell today described as "hopeful" the outlook for settlement of the strike which has halted production in three important Canadian plants and three smaller ones.

He declined to elaborate on his comment.

Mr. Mitchell was questioned on the strike situation at a press conference held to announce new manpower regulations.

OUTLOOK "HOPEFUL"

"I would say the outlook was hopeful," he replied.

No arrangements have been announced for any further strike-settlement conferences and an exchange of letters between Labor Minister Mackenzie King and C. H. Millard, national director of the United Steel Workers of America, indicated that a wide breach still exists between demands of the strikers and an offer made by the government.

Mr. King's letter made public last night, contended that Mr. Millard's attitude towards the union's request for higher wages for the steelworkers showed "con-

Nazis Fear Red Drive Into Norway

By ROBERT DOWSON
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

LONDON, Jan. 22—Germany is having reinforcing its army in far northern Norway in fear of an early Russian Arctic offensive through Finland, Swedish advices said today.

At the same time unusually well informed unofficial sources in Sweden said that if Norway became a war theatre again Sweden would stop immediately the flow of German "leave troops" across its territory.

Stockholm dispatches said that despite the extreme difficulty of transport during the Arctic winter Gen. Nikolaus Von Falkenhorst, German commander-in-chief in Norway was materially strengthening the German far northern garrison, especially in the Vardo-Vadso-Kirkenes area around the Varance fjord where Norway touches the narrow Petsamo peninsula of Finland across which Russian Arctic troops might drive in a day.

FEAR RUSSIANS MOST

Stockholm said Germany was more fearful of a Russian invasion of Arctic Norway than it was of an Allied invasion of the Norwegian Arctic coast.

All Norwegians have been removed from Vardo, the advices said.

It was added that of 8,000 Norwegian inhabitants of Harstad, on the Atlantic side of Arctic Norway, all but 500 had been removed and those who remained were employed at the German naval base.

It was indicated that knowledge of Germany's fears of a Russian Arctic drive lay behind the firm warnings of the Swedish government in recent days that it would defend its territory against any invasion, and the orders to Swedish garrisons to resist without awaiting specific instructions and to ignore as false any order to cease firing.

War Strategy For This Year Now in Making

forces in European waters, and the United States ambassador, John G. Winant, are regarded as possibly related to these matters.

Just as conferences last year resulted in the spectacular North African landings and the resurgence of the Red army, supplied with British and American weapons, so present negotiations also are expected to show bold planning and precise co-ordination.

In the opinion of experienced observers in London there could not be so much optimistic talk here and in the United States if there were not plans at least to support it.

ALL MOVES CO-ORDINATED

Obviously the Allied offensive is reaching the stage where campaigns such as the 8th Army's pursuit of Marshal Rommel, Lt.-Gen. Dwight Eisenhower's campaign in Tunisia, and Russia's reconquest of territory cannot be regarded as isolated and unrelated. They must continue to be co-ordinated on a master plan, and stock must be taken of their progress and results.

One part of this problem of co-ordination is the question of who is to command Allied forces which obviously intend to attack Europe from Britain or Africa or both.

A high British authority as long ago as last summer expressed willingness to give the job to an American general, and the appointment of Eisenhower to his North African command was an immediate result.

Whether his job will be limited to its present scope or extended upon after his intended meeting with Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, British commander-in-chief in the middle east, has been discussed widely in London and undoubtedly is occupying the attention of responsible leaders.

Ban Deliveries Of Tank Car Gas To East States

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The petroleum administration for war yesterday banned railroad tank car delivery of gasoline to the United States Atlantic seaboard to make more cars available for deliveries to replenish supplies of fuel oil in that area. The order left 17 east coast states and the District of Columbia dependent upon gasoline deliveries by pipeline, barge, truck, "or other means," possibly sea-going tankers.

Germans Admit Break-Through At Stalingrad

to the trapped army were believed virtually to have ended because of the widening distance between available bases and the huge losses suffered by the Nazi air force on these missions.

CONTINUE ATTACKS

The official Soviet communique added no new details of the fighting southeast of Leningrad where the Russians have blasted a 10 to 12 mile corridor to the relief of the long beleaguered city.

However, it said that the Russians again were attacking in the region south of Lake Ladoga, presumably with the purpose of driving the Germans farther south of the Neva river and pushing them from the thick network of concrete pillboxes and fortifications which they had erected along the railroad network leading out of Leningrad.

Front reports revealed that the encircled Germans at the Stalingrad area have suffered frest losses as the Russians tighten their nutcracker around them.

DRIVES ADVANCING

Reports of German troops killed or captured on the active fronts from Leningrad south to the Caucasus totalled about 5,000 men, almost equally divided between troops killed and those taken prisoner.

Steadily gaining momentum, the Russians closed in, attacking frontally or in pincers, on Kharkov, Ukraine industrial capital; Voroshilovgrad, Donetz river industrial center; Rostov, gateway to the Caucasus; Salsk, junction point on the Stalingrad-Tikhoretsk railroad, and Armavir, 140 miles southeast of Rostov on the Caucasus railroad.

By taking Voroshilovsk yesterday the Russians were within 85 miles of Armavir on the east, 185 miles southeast of Rostov and only 110 miles west of Salsk. Voroshilovsk where the Caucasus railroad meets the Stalingrad - Salsk - Tikhoretsk line.

TIGHTEN TRAPS

In the Voronezh front, where powerful Russian columns were now reported within 85 miles of Kursk on the Kharkov-Moscow railroad and within less than 80 miles of Kharkov, the Russians during the night tightened the ring around hopelessly encircled Axis troops.

The Voronezh front was one on which enemy fliers during the night tried desperately to break out.

The noon communique reported offensive fighting by the Red Army throughout the night on the Leningrad, South Voronezh, Donets River, Stalingrad, Salsk and Caucasus fronts.

On the Donets front, where the Russians were within 25 miles of Voroshilovgrad, Soviet shock troops during the night stormed and captured a big inhabited locality, seizing four tanks, 19 field guns, two self-propelling guns, a military stores dump and two food dumps, the communique said.

R.A.F. Attacks on Germany Indicated

LONDON, Jan. 22.—(CP)—German radio transmitters at Berlin, Koenigsberg, Leipzig, Stuttgart and Luxembourg went off the air the night at 7.15 p.m. (12.15 p.m., M.D.T.). This usually is an indication that raiders are over the area where broadcasts are silenced.

8th Army Now Reported To Be Inside Tripoli

campaign mounted with an Admiralty report that an Italian submarine had been sunk off Tripoli, and one and possibly more tugs put out of action.

Official Allied sources were reticent on the position of the Eighth Army, but there appeared to be no slackening in the retreat of the Afrika Corps from Tripoli to Tunisia along "the hundred miles of hell."

TRYING TO RESCUE TROOPS

British and American planes gave the retreating Germans and Italians no rest. Axis forces as far west as Ben Gardane, 20 miles inside Tunisia, were attacked. Military observers believed Marshal Erwin Rommel was attempting to rescue as many of his troops as possible from Libya in order to make a stand along the Mareth line in Tunisia, 82 miles from the Tripolitanian border.

The fall of Tripoli would climax a campaign that began three months ago and was featured by a headlong 1,400-mile retreat by the Afrika Corps that for swiftness was almost unprecedented in military history.

The Imperials apparently intend to harass the Germans and Italians all the way into Tunisia. Some military observers said there were strong indications that the Eighth Army had sent out a mobile column to by-pass Tripoli and attempt to cut the enemy retreat beyond the city.

The Germans in Tunisia were developing a local offensive southwest of Pont du Fahs in an attempt to keep open a supply line through which the Afrika Corps could retreat. Two German columns were to move "parallel to Tebourba" against positions held by the French. One column had been halted in front of Robaa, 27 miles southwest of Pont du Fahs, the French said, but the other column was meeting disaster.

A communique from the U.S. Ninth Air Force in Cairo said American medium bombers and fighters were taking an active part in harassing the Axis retreat. American Liberator bombers attacking shipping in the harbor of Tripoli itself.

Cutting sea supply lines to Axis forces both in Tunisia and in Tripolitania, an Allied torpedo boat sank another Axis merchantman off the Tunisian coast and a tanker was "successfully attacked."

Britain has announced the sinking by Russians of at least five ships in the African area in the last three days. All but a few were tanks.

PLANES HAVE FIELD DAY

Additionally, Allied units attacked small enemy ships between Sicily and Tunisia yesterday with "good effect."

The powerful Allied air striking force under the middle eastern command was "very active" last night. Besides blasting retreating Axis transport, battered and burning Tripoli harbor was bombed by night, the communique said, targets in Sicily and the airdrome on Pantelleria Island also were bombed and shot up.

Tripoli's imminent capture by the British army which had shattered and pursued the Afrika Korps for almost 1,400 miles had been forecast for hours. United States Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson told the Washington yesterday afternoon that the fall of Tripoli was then "a matter of hours."

A press report from Madrid said advanced units of the Eighth Army were only five miles from Tripoli last night.

Dispatches from Algiers and from the desert said it was a flaming city, and even the main Axis rearguard had evacuated it and was well on its way to Tunisia.

HARBOR CHOKED

Dispatches from Algiers, via Madrid, said some Axis forces had tried to flee Tripoli in small boats undergoing a hellish bombing and machine-gunning from British and American planes. The harbor was choked with the wreckage of vessels sunk in earlier raids and the Axis was unable to get out or in with ships.

Quay sides and the Spanish mole in the harbor were said to be burning fiercely.

Allied planes from all directions swooped down continuously on the road from Tripoli to Tunisia "the hundred miles of hell"—bleeding the remnants of the Africa Corps with bomb and machine gun. It blossomed with burning vehicles, some of which bombs had hit, and some of which the German themselves had set on fire when they stalled.

The Tunisian dispatches said Marshal Erwin Rommel, commanding the Africa Corps, had withdrawn every one of his planes from Tripolitania to Tunisia in the face of overwhelming Allied aerial superiority.

Military observers deduced that he had sufficient flyer losses at El Alamein, where the British first routed his army, than had at first been supposed, and the Allied naval and air blockade had been successful in preventing him from getting fuel for his tanks, remaining trucks and planes from Europe.

Changes Made In Selective Service Rules

persons between the ages of 16 and 65 years of age must register for work if not gainfully employed for seven consecutive days.

SOME EXEMPTED

Students, housewives and clergymen are exempted from this registration provision.

The regulations formerly required all persons regardless of their age to register for work if unemployed.

The minister announced a tightening of the regulations regarding work outside of the agricultural industry by Canadian farmers. They now may work only 60 days in the year, and not more than 30 days without a selective service permit. Previously they could work only 30 days at a stretch without a permit but there was no limitation on the number of 30-day periods they could work off the farm during any given year.

Employment other than farming in which farmers may engage must be outside municipalities with more than 5,000 population.

The minister announced the new regulations at a press conference.

DEFINES PROVISIONS

The regulations are prefaced by a statement defining the position of voluntary and compulsory provisions of selective service. The minister is required to carry out the government's manpower policies "by the voluntary placement of labor, if that is practical, and shall only exercise the powers of compulsion with respect to labor regulations when, in his opinion, such action is necessary."

In a statement outlining the regulations, the minister said they were intended to provide "an increasing control over the employment market."

Under other new provisions in the regulations now effective, every employer must notify the employment service of any surplus workers in his employ, and an employed person may be authorized by a selective service officer to leave his present employment on seven days' notice and accept other employment, when the worker agrees, even though his contract of employment or law might ordinarily require longer notice.

RULES ON NOTICES

Amendments have been made to the regulations requiring seven day's notice for dismissal or resignation. They now only apply to persons employed for at least one month. Those volunteering for service with the armed forces are no longer required to give notice.

Appeals against ruling of selective service officers, previously heard by war service boards, now will go before courts of referees under the unemployment insurance commission. There are 30 of these courts, set up to handle appeals, Mr. Mitchell said.

Mr. Mitchell said that while the services of labor can be used to greatest advantage through voluntary methods and with the agreement of the workers concerned, these voluntary methods might always be supplemented by compulsion when necessary.

"The compulsory features provided in the regulations may be resorted to so that inconveniences and burdens will be suffered not alone by those willing to accept them but by any persons whose skills and abilities are useful in the war effort," he said.

CAN ASK DISMISSALS

In a section linking the civilian regulations with the military call-up, the minister said he was empowered to ask for the dismissal in civilian employment of any person who fails to provide his employer with evidence that he has not contravened call-up regulations. Similarly, those seeking work and failing to furnish evidence on this nature may be refused work permits or instructions of the minister.

The section of the new regulations directed to prevent labor hoarding is "not seriously needed at the moment," Mr. Mitchell said, and Arthur MacNamara, director of National Selective Service, said surveys made so far do not show any general hoarding on the part of industries.

The new regulations restricting farmers to 60 day's work in a year away from the farm were intended to prevent agricultural workers leaving the farm for a 30-day period, as allowed under previous regulations, returning to the farm for a short period, and then taking another 30 days in other employment.

UNIFORM POLICY

Questioned regarding the policy of call-up boards in dealing with applications by farm workers for postponement of call-up, Mr. Mitchell said instructions are being sent to these boards to ensure adoption of a uniform policy.

Practical nurses and workers in fish-processing have been added to the classes exempt from the general regulations applying to civilian employment. Persons previously exempted included workers in agriculture and fishing, technical personnel, registered nurses, teachers, female domestic workers, and part-time workers.

Workers in building construction now are exempted, but require notices of the seven-day notice provision but are still required to obtain permits to seek or accept employment.

The provisions for enforcement of the regulations have been tightened and penalties in some cases are increased.

Provision for the compulsory transfer in civilian employment may apply to persons "who belong to an age class or part of an age class which has been designated by proclamation" for military service.

PAYMENT OF EXPENSES

Previous regulations provided for the payment of transportation expenses and supplementary living allowances up to $5 a week for persons transferred.

Mr. MacNamara, discussing the new regulations, said men would be moved from high-wage to low-wage areas only in emergencies and it was not anticipated there would be any extensive movement of married men. Should this become necessary, it would probably be found that further consideration would have to be given to supplementary living allowances.

The new regulations provide authority for the labor minister to consult the war services, and other departments and agencies of the government on general man power questions, and on the recommendations to the government for the co-ordination of activities of the various war services and other government departments and agencies which affect the manpower situation.

He is also empowered to "take such steps as may be necessary to ensure the most efficient use of manpower by employers," other than the government.

War News Summary

FRIDAY, JANUARY 22

North Africa: The fall of Tripoli is expected hourly, British headquarters communique initimated Gen. Rommel may have been outflanked by withdrawal of some of his troops and equipment from Tripoli by sea, reporting that Allied fliers were constantly battering the city's harbor.

Parts of the Axis citadel are reported aflame and much of the civilian population is being evacuated.

The British command asserts that some of the fleeing Axis forces have withdrawn as far as 25 miles inside Tunisia from Libya.

Heavy fighting is also in progress in central Tunisia, suggesting that a showdown battle is developing for the last Axis foothold in North Africa.

A communique from Allied headquarters in North Africa said the German armored forces threatening the French positions at Robaa, 27 miles southwest of Pont Du Fahs, are under Allied attack from the air and on the ground.

Strong reinforcements of the British 1st Army were reported speeding to support the hard-pressed French on the west flank in Tunisia.

Russia: A bulletin from Hitler's headquarters admitted that Russian troops attacking from the west had broken through the lines of the German "defenders of Stalingrad"—the beleaguered force described by the Russians as the remnants of 22 Nazi divisions.

Soviet dispatches have said the German siege armies originally numbered 220,000 men, but have been tightly engulfed in the Don-Volga corridor and whittled down to less than 50,000.

Europe: Britain's big home-based bombers, perhaps 100 strong, returned to the attack on Germany after a three-night lull, raining havoc on Nazi war foundries in the Ruhr. Large fires were left raging. Four R.A.F. planes are missing.

Pacific Theatre: Allied headquarters reported that despite the handicap of a 10-inch rain falling in a single day, Allied troops wiped out the last of the last four small pockets of Japanese resisting on the Papuan peninsula.

Minister Sees Hope of Strike Being Settled

plete lack of understanding of the measures being taken to protect all workers."

Mr. Millard claimed in his letter, made public yesterday, that if all the steelworkers' demands were met the total annual cost would not exceed $2,000,000 or $3,000,000. The workers seek a minimum basic wage rate of 50 cents an hour plus cost-of-living bonus, and proportionately higher rates for those in higher wage brackets.

The Prime Minister's letter said: "The general application of the course you suggest would involve not two or three but hundreds of millions of dollars, and would make effective control of prices virtually impossible."

It concluded: "Knowing as you do how vital the maintenance of steel production is to the successful prosecution of the war, and knowing also that the strikes have not been authorized by responsible union officials, I am unable to understand why you have not used your influence to urge the immediate return of the men to work."

The strike has left 13,500 men idle in plants of the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation at Sydney, N.S., and Trenton, N.S., and the plant of the Algoma Steel Corporation at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

NO SIGN OF BREAK

At the Sault there was no sign of any break in the deadlock. The executive of Algoma local of the U.S.W.A. said no information had been received from Secretary William Mahoney or President Eric Dalrymple who attended the strike conferences in Ottawa. Union officials in Sydney also were without word from their delegates who attended the strike conference in Ottawa.

The walkout also continued at three plants in Trenton operated by subsidiaries of Dosco.

In Toronto representatives of Local 1005 of the U.S.W.A. conferred last night with Hon. Peter Heenan, Labor minister, regarding an effort to settle the dispute over union recognition at the Steel Company of Canada plant in Hamilton.

DECIDE ON STRIKE

Union employees at the Hamilton plant decided to take strike action if the company refuses to grant union recognition by next Monday. They are also seeking a 55-cent basic wage rate.

The 5,000 Sault employees—4,000 striking union employees and 1,000 other men left idle by the work stoppage — collected $2,000,000 in wages for their work in the first 13 days of the month. The pay covered the period before the strike began. It will probably be found that further consideration would have to be given to supplementary living allowances.

Union officials at the Sault said they had no word of an early solution of the strike. They repeated their demand that the plant back to work unless their demands for a basic labor wage rate of 55 cents an hour and cost-of-living bonus were met. They were hopeful, however, that proposals of C. H. Millard, national director of labor, and the Prime Minister Mackenzie King would pave the way for renewed negotiations in the dispute.

11TH DAY OF ILLNESS

At Sydney, prepared to hold out for another 11 days or longer for recognition of their demands, 5,000 striking steelworkers entered their eleventh day of idleness.

Officials of the Sydney union local said last night it was up to Ottawa to make the next move.

Engineer, Fireman Killed When East Train Is Derailed

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—(CP)—Engineer and fireman of a Canadian Pacific Railway train were instantly killed early this morning at Tapley, 15 miles west of Peterborough, Ont. when their engine left the track, dragging a baggage car and coach with it, railway officials said today.

The dead are: George Fry, engineer, Toronto, and George Leon, fireman, Toronto.

C.P.R. officials said cause of the accident was not known but that passengers were only "slightly shaken up," with no serious injuries.

Although derailed the baggage car and passenger coach remained upright. The engine was thrown on its side.

Recommends

low as previously, a slight wind from the southwest kept residents shivering.

During Thursday afternoon there was some sunshine, the first for several days and all traces of the ground fog which has been so thick during the colder spell had disappeared. About 4 p.m., Edmonton looked as if it really were part of "sunny Alberta."

At about 8 p.m., however, the heavy fog began to rise from the river valley and in an hour street lights were not visible for more than a block away. By 11 p.m. this had almost all cleared away, leaving a perfectly clear atmosphere.

HORSE SUCCUMBS

It is not only human being who are suffering from the cold, for Thursday morning while making the rounds one of the horses of the Northern Alberta Dairy Pool dropped dead while in the vicinity of 94 street and 118 avenue.

This was attributed by officials to some ailment, in the horse, aggravated by the extreme cold. It was one of the dairy's oldest horses, was five years old, and had been obtained from the Dominion experimental farm at Lacombe.

RINKS CLOSED

Skating enthusiasts have had to curtail their skating activities the last two days as, for the first time in 25 years, the outdoor rinks have been closed.

For the first time in several days the forecast has dropped the "decidedly" before the dread word "cold." It reads for Alberta, "cloudy and cold with light snow chiefly in south portion."

In other portions of the province the cold continues unabated. Coldest place in the north was Athabasca with 52 below. Next to this came McMurray and Pelican with two degrees less.

In Calgary when the temperature took a sharp rise upward, eager citizens looked for one of the city's famous Chinooks but hopes dropped with the temperature's reading for Calgary yesterday was 46 below.

Meteorological readings for all the cities in the three prairie provinces during the past 24 hours show that no place made a reading of above zero. The highest reading was at Winnipeg with 12 below.

Dismissal of Car Motorman Now Approved

in this position, indicating that the brakes had been faulty applied at the time of the accident.

"After careful examination of the facts in the case it would appear that the accident was the result of improper operation of the equipment and poor judgment on the part of the motorman, and I would recommend that he be dismissed from the service."

"In the case of the three motormen travelling in the vestibule of the street car they already have been disciplined by being placed at the bottom of the spare list, but in view of the fact that they were disregarding recent definite instructions I would suggest for approval that they be continued on the spare list for 14 days." The city commissioners concurred in this recommendation.

TOLD SAME STORY

Mr. Ferrier points out also that the three motormen travelling with Paradis when questioned all told the same story, but agreed that the car appeared to be working perfectly and that they did not notice anything wrong until Paradis pulled the key.

Paradis stated in his examination by Mr. Gosling that when he applied his brakes "there was not a sign of air at all, and the car would not brake and I pulled the key and I was not more than half-way between 98 and 97 avenues. Then I waited for the reverse to grab."

NO TIME TO THINK

Asked by Mr. Gosling if he used sand in an attempt to lessen the speed of the car, Paradis stated that he "did not have time to think." He admitted that he had a good condition at the time of the accident.

In the report submitted by Mr. Gosling regarding the passengers interviewed were of the opinion that the street car was being operated at too high a speed. Mr. Gosling stated that in his opinion the cause of the accident was the excessive speed at which the car was being operated.

Thirteen persons were injured in the accident, none of them seriously.

Jap Cruiser, 3 Cargo Ships Blasted by Allied Planes

By DON CASWELL
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Jan. 22.—Allied bombers, under a full moon, smashed at the busy Japanese harbor of Rabaul, on New Britain, and Amboina, in the Dutch East Indies, Wednesday night, scoring direct hits on one cruiser and three cargo ships, an Allied announcement said today.

In the Sananda area of Papuan New Guinea, Australian and American troops wiped out one of four Japanese pockets of resistance Thursday, killing 150 men, the communique said.

Liberator heavy bombers swarmed upon the cruiser and a 5,000-ton merchantman at Amboina shortly before dawn on Thursday, and two out of 20 Zero fighter planes that attempted to intercept the raiders were shot down.

Catalina Flying Boats, followed by three waves of Flying Fortresses at high altitudes, struck Rabaul shortly before midnight and heavily hit 6,000-ton and 2,000-ton cargo ships. The larger vessel was beached. The planes then bombed airdromes in the Rabaul vicinity.

Japanese medium' bombers raided Port Darwin, in northern Australia, Thursday night but their bombs fell harmlessly into the bush.

Harold Guard, British United Press staff correspondent on the New Guinea front, reported that five Liberators, in a 45-minute dogfight with 25 Japanese fighters off northern New Guinea on Wednesday afternoon, bagged 12 and damaged six.

Six Canadians On Flying Fort Help Sink Sub

By SCOTT YOUNG

WITH THE R.C.A.F. SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Jan. 22.—(CP)—Six Canadians were in the crew of a Flying Fortress captained by FO. Ernie Allen of Brantford, Ont., which almost certainly sunk a submarine after a duel over Britain's coastal sea lanes.

German sailors working on the sub's deck noticed the aircraft at about the same time the Canadians saw the sub, and a 20-millimetre deck gun and machine gun blazed up at the huge Allied craft as it went into its bombing run.

Sgt. Lloyd Woods of Toronto, FO. George Flieger of Chatham, N.B., and Sgt. Howard Barton of London, Ont., hammered away from their gunposts at the men on the submarine deck. The bomb-aimer sent a stick of depth charges hurtling down beside the undersea craft.

Allen brought the big ship around in a sharp turn, and the bomb-aimer dropped another stick across the submarine's wake.

"It dropped out of sight and we circled around a while," Woods related later. "Then the nose of the sub broke the surface of the waves and stuck up into the air."

This R.C.A.F. crew includes PO. Al Henry of Victoria, B.C., and FO. George Leforme, a western Canadian navigator.

Havoc Widspread In Balloon Blast

VALLEJO, Calif., Jan. 22—(AP)—An army barrage balloon exploded at its moorings yesterday, shattered a barracks building, which burst into flames, destroyed at least 10 war workers' houses nearby, killed one man and injured 17 other persons.

Army officials in San Francisco said the man killed was Richard S Cail, technician, and listed five other soldiers who were injured. They said the condition of these was "satisfactory."

Ten homes in a row of war workers' houses, hastily constructed to meet housing shortages in the area, collapsed, and four others were damaged.

Rolla Woody, war worker in one of the wrecked houses, said he saw "the walls of my house bulge out and fall away. My daughter (Rolene Woody, , 20) came flying through the air and fell to the ground."

She was shaken up and bruised, but not critically hurt. Woody rescued five unconscious soldiers from the burning barracks.

Hamilton Steelmen See Labor Minister On Wage Dispute

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 22.—(CP)—Representatives of local 1005 of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.) conferred in Toronto yesterday with Ontario Labor Minister Peter Heenan in an effort to settle the labor dispute at the Steel Company of Canada plant here, it was learned here last night.

Union representatives at the meeting were M. T. Montgomery, district field representative, and Thomas McClure president of Local 1005.

The meeting followed a decision by union employees of the plant at a meeting Wednesday night to take strike action it the company refuses to grant union recognition by next Monday. The men are also pressing for a 55-cent basic wage rate at the plant, only one of three basic steel producing plants in Canada not affected by existing work stoppages in the steel industry.

LAST TRAIN FROM BERLIN

BY HOWARD K. SMITH

expletives. In a single editorial, one morning newspaper one day found space to call the American President a "gangster", a "butcher", a cannibal in a white collar", a "negroid maniac", and a "depraved Jewish scoundrel!"

FILTHY ATTACKS

Ribbentrop's go-between with the foreign press and radio, Dr. Paul Schmidt, a fat, repulsive ambitious individual, took over the leadership of the Nazi choir, and struggled hard to build himself up a reputation as the German Specialist-on-questions-involving-Roosevelt. Like a good holy-roller preacher, Schmidt was capable of working into an alarming fury and actually slobbering at the mouth with rage. His attacks grew filthier day by day, until on one occasion, when he was unable to find more relevant features of the American President to pour vtriol on, he spat forth a long, vile essay on the President's physical affliction.

The only significance these examples of ideological bankruptcy have is that they were a remarkable compliment to the leader, by clearly expressed choice, of the American people. He was effective, too damned effective. But certainly the best compliment was delivered by the creator of the precept himself—Adolf Hitler, in the speech in which he declared war on America. The Fuehrer, if you heard the speech and recall the part, had reviewed the sins committed against Germany with uncommon restraint of voice. For exactly three-quarters of an hour, he had worked his way through Greek, Roman and German history, through the World War and up to the contemporary phase of this one.

OVERSTRAINED VOICE

Then he asked the rhetorical question: Who was responsible for this bloody conflict; who was the biggest war-monger of all? Then taking a deep breath, the Fuehrer screamed at a pitch he has never before or since attained—his voice cracked after the first syllable—Roosevelt! If you recall, the Leader did not resume for more than sixty seconds (seventy-two seconds to be precise; reporters notice things like that). The fact is, if I may trust a German friend who was there in the Berlin Sports Palace while I listened on the wireless, Hitler overstrained his voice, and coughed twice to recover it! Throughout the rest of his speech his tone of voice was unusually moderate. The question was rhetorical, but certainly the bisyllabic answer came from the bottom of his unusual heart. Whatever may be said against the Fuehrer, he is capable of a profound sincerity. He hates the Jews sincerely and the Russians. But he never approached breaking a vocal cord over a Jew or a Russian.

The anti-American campaign caught on quickly with the German people. The change in sentiment was so swift that by autumn, 1941, it had become perilous for an American to speak English on the streets of Berlin. I myself was ordered out of two restaurants in the Kurfuerstendamm area for committing the crime of speaking my own language.

A preposterous feature was that in one case, in the Tusculum restaurant, I had addressed the waiters in German but they had insisted on answering me in English until the manager, on the suggestion of people at tables near mine, scolded them and told them to direct me to leave the premises immediately and, please, not to come back again! It was a fantastic incident. By the time I had paid my bill (I insisted on paying; God knows why), men at the tables around mine were standing up and crying plain and fancy curses at me.

My room-mate, Jack Fleischer, came home one night bruised from having been beaten up on Wittencher Platz by three German officers for addressing in English a German girl we both knew in a restaurant near our place. For the same crime, three members of the staff of the American Embassy were set upon in Horcher's, Berlin's best restaurant by three Italian patrons and two German waiters. One of the Americans suffered a broken hand after a fifteen-minute fight, but he did not discover it until all five of the enemy were on their backs cold and policemen had been called into the restaurant to arrest the victors. They were, of course, released after they showed their diplomatic passports. Berlin had become a not very pleasant assignment for Americans.

UNCOMFORTABLE ROLE

When the pinch came to Naziism, American correspondents suffered at first more acutely than the few other Americans in Germany, due to the very nature of their vocation. They were the eyes and ears of the hated America inside Germany. What 130,000,000 Americans knew about contemporary Germany was bottlenecked through fifteen or twenty reporters on the spot. They were cast in the egregious role of being spectators who wrote and spoke what they saw in a country that was virtually at war with their own nation. The role was not a comfortable one, you may be sure.

Hotels requested American correspondents to vacate their rooms. All our telephone conversations were obviously tapped, and our houses were watched by not very subtly disguised plain clothes detectives. Anxious to prevent reports of what was happening in Berlin from reaching enemy ears, the propaganda ministry several times warned the American corps to mind its ways of reporting, for misdemeanors—and there was no fixed guide as to what was a misdemeanor and what a comprehensive, conscientiously written dispatch—would be considered military and political espionage, and that we knew what the penalty for espionage was. It was a ticklish situation; the whole resembled what people talk about when they refer to a Reign of Terror. That is not an exaggeration, it is quite serious. The Nazis were not fooling or making empty threats; they meant it.

Canadian Wheat May Go to India

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—(CP)—Canadian wheat may make up part of proposed heavy shipments to India by the United Kingdom although no information yet has been received by the federal government, Trade Minister MacKinnon said yesterday.

L. C. M. S. Amery, British secretary for India, said in the House of Commons in London yesterday that the food situation in India is causing anxiety and that the British government is urgently considering heavy shipments of wheat to tide the country over until spring wheat is available there.

While Canada has not been informed of the projected shipments, this country has an abundance of wheat and was prepared to do everything possible to assist in such shipments if its help was required by the British government, Mr. MacKinnon said.

Blame Panic, Exits For Big Fire Toll

BOSTON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Improper exit facilities and panic contributed greatly to the 489 deaths at the recent Cocoanut Grove night club disaster, it was stated yesterday in a report by the National Fire Protection association which said the tragedy resulted from an "ordinary fire." The report said it was not caused by any mysterious or highly-inflammable agent. It added "we can not believe that this disaster is chargeable to any deficiency of the law."

Some Motorists To Get Ration Reclaim Tires

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—(CP)—The munitions department announced today that beginning next month a "limited number" of tires now being manufactured in Canada, under a new process, from reclaim rubber will be rationed to a selected list of vehicle owners who are not permitted under the tire-rationing regulations to buy new tires made from crude.

The release of these reclaim-rubber tires will not help the average private motorist. Since May, 1942, some 800,000 vehicle owners have been denied tires of any kind.

"The ordinary motorist will have to wait until the war is over before any type of rubber, whether crude, reclaim or synthetic, can be released to make his tires," said rubber controller Alan H. Williamson in the departmental statement.

QUOTA FOR AREA

Permits to buy the new reclaim tires will be issued only to certain vehicles in Class "B" of the tire-rationing categories. Each tire-rationing representative—there are 120 in Canada—will be given a quota for his area.

From this quota he will allot reclaim tires for the following types of vehicles, listed in descending order of priority:

1—Passenger cars owned by plant employees who drive their fellow-employees to and from work under the wartime industrial transit plan;

2—Taxis and "drive-yourself" cars registered with the transit controller;

3—Cars owned by mail carriers under contract with the post office department;

4—Cars owned by farmers who transport their produce and supplies and do not own a truck;

5—Other class "B" vehicles in the order of their local importance as determined by the representative in consultation with the rubber control

Doctors, visiting nurses, fire and police departments, and the other highly-essential users in Class "A" will remain the only vehicle owners entitled to purchase, by permit, from what the department said is a "dwindling supply" of new, crude rubber tires made before the tire manufacture ban went into effect Dec. 12, 1941.

ALLOWED USED TIRES

Owners in Class "C," including certain newspaper reporters, scrap buyers and a limited list of other vehicle owners, are entitled to purchase used tires, but will not be allowed any of the new reclaim tires.

Mr. Williamson said that during the past year experts have developed a tire made entirely from reclaim rubber and it is this tire which now is being manufactured.

"The new tire is being made from high-grade reclaim and best-grade passenger cord," said Mr. Williamson. "It will give satisfactory service if carefully looked after, and if not driven more than 35 miles an hour."

The new reclaim tires are being made only in four-ply construction, and in three sizes: 30x3½, 6.00-16, 6.25-6.50-16, 5.25-5.50-17, 5.25-5.50-18, 4.75-5.00-19, 4.50-4.75-5.00-20, 4.40-4.50-21.

Manufacturing cost of the new reclaim tire is "disproportionately of each size are being made, and high" because only small quantities because the manufacturing process is difficult.

"The retail price will be fixed at a level which will be approximately the average between the high and low-priced lines of crude rubber tires," said Mr. Williamson. "Insufficient of the reclaim tires will be available to provide for stocks in dealers' hands."

Detroit Trams in Uproar As 'Gremlins' Take Over

DETROIT, Jan. 22.—(AP)—There's a widespread suspicion that the Gremlins, or some other pestiferous breed, have a hand in what's happening to the Detroit street railways system as it struggles to transport a war-swollen population about what used to be known as the motor city.

Conductorettes in natty uniforms have become commonplace but recent weird goings-on have the populace agape.

For instance, there was the bus which couldn't find the way back to its garage—until a passenger directed the driver.

Wednesday a street car was lost three miles off its course and so war another bus.

A second bus just disappeared. The driver parked it, empty, at a curb to call his dispatcher. It was gone when he returned and was found near a war plant 10 miles away late in the day. Police could only deduce that some impatient patron had boarded it and driven to work.

"NO KIDDING!"

On a cross street three miles from Woodward avenue (Detroit's main stem) the motorman of the lost trolley stopped to ask a garage man: "How do I get to Woodward, Buddy?"

"Are you kidding?" gaped the garage man.

"No" said the motorman, forlornly. "I'm lost." And he pointed to his car, from which irate passengers stared.

Straight Woodward was his run, with no side trips. A split switch apparently had detoured the rookie. It has not been recorded how he returned.

U.S. Army Scraps Its Brass Buttons

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—The United States army is scrapping its brass buttons but, Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson said yesterday, "there doesn't seem to be any saving of brass in brass hats." Patterson made the remark in telling a press conference that substitution of plastic for brass in uniform buttons is expected to save 365,000 pounds of the metal this year.

Make Them Available

A national survey of Canada's eating habits, in connection with the current nutrition campaign, revealed the fact that the most serious dietary shortage in this country is the small consumption of citrus fruit and tomato juices.

What most Edmonton housewives want to know is where they are going to get these invaluable fruit juices. Citrus fruits, in whole form, are scarce and high-priced. The canned juices are rare and getting more rare. Of what use is it to tell people the kinds of food to eat for health and then take no steps to see that those foods are readily available?

The excellent campaign waged along this line by the Department of Pensions and National Health would be infinitely more effective if it were supplemented by some hard thinking on the part of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board to the end of making essential fruit juices more abundant and less expensive.

Ersatz Restorative

A half-dozen Nazi raiders out of several times that number managed to get through the ack-ack barrage and bombed a school house and some dwelling houses in London. That this was the heaviest raid the luftwaffe has been able to stage for many months shows how completely the balance of air power has changed sides in the last year and a half. Even so, there is a suggestion that laxity on the part of some officials was responsible for so many planes getting over the city, or for so many persons being killed by them.

If further proof were needed that Goering's killers are no longer able to launch heavy attacks on their favorite target, it is found in the way the Berlin radio played up this six-plane sortie as though it had been a large scale affair. German listeners were given to understand that London had been blasted as severely as in the days of luftwaffe supremacy in numbers. The broadcasters must have felt that the Nazi rank and file needed a shot of synthetic stimulant.

A Quarter in the Pot

It is announced that the Edmonton Kinsmen Club, in co-operation with other Kinsmen groups in Northern Alberta, contributed $18,622 to national Milk Campaign headquarters during 1942. This is a splendid showing and illustrates the magnificent war work being done by the service and luncheon clubs in this district.

But there is another way in which all these service and luncheon clubs can help. The War Services Council of Northern Alberta, which represents the Department of National War Services in this district, is charged with the task of providing entertainment for the armed forces, of establishing and operating leave and recreation centres, the Citizens' Volunteer Bureau and dozens of other projects which build morale and render essential services to our fighting men.

All this requires money, plenty of money. And the War Services Council must find that money.

This, then, is to suggest that each member of every service or luncheon club be asked to slip an extra quarter in the pot for work at every meeting.

An extra twenty-five cents a week would not seriously embarrass the members of these clubs, particularly in these times of higher salaries. It would be a patriotic and highly useful gesture. Perhaps the clubs would consider it.

The March to the West

For purposes of reference Moscow identifies nine sectors on which the Russians have started their drives. But as the later drives have been breaking out in gaps between the earlier ones, and as many of the spearheads have either mushroomed or linked up one with another, it would be simpler to indicate the points at which the Red army is not definitely on the march. The separate thrusts are fast merging into a general forward movement along the whole line from the Gulf of Finland to the northern Caucasus.

After two months of war Russians have apparently recaptured more territory than the enemy gained last summer, though the calculation is uncertain because the present fighting line is in many areas undefined. What is clear from the definite announcements of centres retaken is that the Nazis are in control of less Russian territory now than they were in December of 1941. Except in the Caucasus they are nowhere holding key points as far east as they had then advanced. They are a hundred miles farther from Moscow than they were when their first summer campaign came to an end. They then held Leningrad in a grip that has now been broken, and in the south had captured Rostov.

Along a good part of the eastern front the Nazi forces are now retreating over ground they had already traversed three times—twice on the advance and once on the retreat. It would be more correct to say ground over which other Nazi forces had done this shuttling back and forth. For of the original host that raced into Russia in mid-summer of 1941 there can be only a minority left to wallow through the snow. The others of the originals are dead, in Russian prison camps, hobbling about Germany on crutches, and lying in hospitals scattered from Norway to Greece. The number of these casualties has been variously estimated up to four millions.

This helps to explain why the propaganda department at Berlin has stopped blowing the trumpets to celebrate the destruction of Russia, and has started beating the drums to summon the German people to still greater efforts and to warn them of still more bitter experience to come. Those who dare to look at the facts will readily enough sense the gravity of the warning. A year ago last fall the radio tune was "Russia can never rise again". Now the consolation is offered that the Red army still has a lot of ground to cover before it can cross the German border.

The thought must be taking root in German minds that the roads which the west-bound Nazi troops are now travelling for the fourth time are also roads they will not tread again. That Hitler can organize a third summer blitzkrieg is becoming daily less possible. Not only because the Russians have developed unsuspected valor and staying power, but because the Allied army now forming across the Mediterranean would make another deep penetration of Nazi forces into Russia something in the nature of a suicide manoeuvre.

Hitler's problem now is not that of organizing attacks upon other countries, but that of preparing, materially and otherwise, for the defence of Germany itself before this year is out. That is the unwelcome fact his broadcasters are trying to get across to the German people without causing an explosion or a collapse of morale.

Chile's break with the Axis will not bring any large reinforcements to the Allied fighting forces. But it closes the last but one neutral country in this hemisphere against enemy agents. And the Chilean navy will be used to escort its merchant ships on their lawful business. While the navy is not large, it is relatively strong in destroyers and submarines, ships which are particularly adapted to convoy purposes. That Chile's merchant ships will need protection goes without saying.

"Canada's Human War Loan"

Englishman's Castle Has Let 'Down It's Drawbridge for War

BY LIEUT. BRIAN MEREDITH, IN "LONDON CALLING"

We Canadians over here are going to be very different people when we come back home after the war. We will be returning with old affectations and old ties strengthened by long absence, and we will be bringing back a lot of new ideas. You would get an inkling of our changing ideas if you could listen to our talk and be with us for a bit, listen to the radio, read the papers, and lead the life that has become commonplace in wartime Britain.

You would see a group of N.C.O.'s arguing something in the Sergeants' Mess, or a couple of young officers carrying on a heated debate in a draughty billet far into the night. You would hear a Canadian exchanging ideas with British soldiers and civilians in a railway compartment, with their faces in shadow and a shaded light from the ceiling falling on a book someone was trying to read on his knee.

You would hear talk of shoes and ships and sealing-wax, how we're going to win, and what's going to happen afterwards.

Versatile

I think you would gather, if you were here, that the Canadian Army is not only an actively argumentative Army but a versatile Army. You see, a democratic Army is just a group of ordinary citizens united for the specific job of fighting; but total modern war involves every citizen, and in the Army you find practically every citizen more or less doing what was his regular job.

I know a man, one of thousands, who used to be a truck driver before, and he's a truck driver now. Only he has been taught more about engines and maintenance and given a greater variety of experience than he ever had before. Past one he's a welder in an ordnance workshop doing work he would have been unable to tackle in peace. And that is the case with engineers and surveyors, clerks and cooks, technicians and craftsmen of every kind.

The Armed Services are really giving their men a break. They provide good food, medical services and hard training that keeps men healthy; experience that keeps them alert. And sooner or later, and in full measure, of course, already and frequently, the danger and excitement and achievement and sacrifice of real action will have steeled, sobered and matured men.

Dividend

These men, these comrades of mine, you can bet your life into the whole, useful citizens, a rich dividend to Canada's great human war loan.

You would find that the Army had schooled them in many trades, in co-operation and in leadership; and you would also find them stimulated by the world here in which they have been living. They themselves have been a leaven and they, too, have been quickened.

Contacts with other people, everyday observation of the problems and achievement of another country, arguments and discussions with strangers, all have stirred us up. New ideas, new curiosities have grown and spread from one to another. It hasn't been always conscious; it hasn't affected everyone; but I has touched an impressive number, consequently the past period, far from being dull, has been a mentally exciting time that has made us readier to tackle intelligently and with a whole heart the fighting that must succeed the time of adjustment and patient adaptation that must follow victory.

But I must return to some of the things we notice, agree and disagree on, wrangle and wonder about.

For one thing, we see a lot of the life of the ordinary citizen in Britain. He's our friend, our relative often; we are billeted with him, maybe; we share his papers, his radio, his news, his outlook, his ideas. Those of us who have been here three years have seen him cope with a lot of wartime problems, seen him change.

The proverbial man-in-the-street in Britain was always a sturdily practical democrat, and since the war he's more so. In the blitz days they said Britain Can Take It. Well, the whole Britisher has withstood a blitz on his Bill of Rights with a cheerful mess that had equalled his stoicism under bombing and that will probably go as far towards beating the enemy. Hitler's men have come home, his castle, has let down its drawbridge for the duration. He's taken in evacuees, children from towns bombed or in danger of bombing—and he's taken in billetees — often Canadian soldiers. His larder has been raided, his eating habits changed, his wardrobe rendered fit for a scarecrow, his nice cup of tea weakened, and the fire on his fireside damped down a bit.

We've seen him take it, and like it, or like it in the end. It's made a new man of him. He's altered the way his home has altered since the start of the war. Even as his Church has altered. When the Archbishop of Canterbury talk about national and international planning and social security, Mr. John Citizen of England's Castle, East Suburbia, takes an intelligent interest because he knows what sacrifices it entails. And his interest is sympathetic and philosophical.

Exchange

The Canadian and the American have got to know the Englishman and the Scotsman well as a result of this war, and they have got to know us. A lot of them have, of course, exchanged places with us, and trained for flying in Canada while we have completed our training in soldiering in Britain. It has been a pretty good thing, this exchanging.

A fellow across the table in the Mess remarked that the U.S. Canadian Army we are all exchanged and mixed in: eastern men have work with western, Yank with English, town with country. Now, wouldn't it be a good thing after the war if we went in for exchange, temporarily, provincial civil servants, high school students and undergraduates between provinces? Then we'd really get to know something about each other, and we'd develop, or should develop, real national outlooks."

Here in Britain we have seen the exchange brought about by evacuation. I know a woman who runs a lift—an elevator—in London, whose middle son was evacuated to Wales. He landed in the house of a naval officer, has won scholarships at school, and has gained in health and experience in a way he could never have done otherwise. You've probably heard of the London kiddie who won the prize for Welsh last year. And when we've worked on farms this summer—and the army lent a hand with the harvest—we met plenty of town kiddies who were settled happily on the land. Yes, the war has certainly been a Back-to-the-Land movement for many people.

You'll find Canadian soldiers among the crowds who peer speculatively at the plans for the rebuilding of London on view in Burlington House, the home of the Royal Academy, off Piccadilly. The blitz and bombing made a lot of this town-planning possible and psychologically the war has bust up bottlenecks and opened up isolated compartments in the British mentality, and has cleared the way for planning as realistic and yet as flexible as the plan for a Better London.

Want United Council

British and U.S. Differences in North Africa Are Serious

By RAYMOND CLAPPER

WASHINGTON. — The unfortunate differences between London and Washington over political policies in North Africa should serve as a jolting warning that it is dangerous to delay creation of a United Nations council.

This dispute as to who should exercise political power in North Africa, and who should serve as liaison for the French government, its empire and its physical assets, is exactly the kind of business that should be the responsibility of a United Nations executive council. It is not the kind of business that ought to be referred to be picked over between London and Washington.

President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill are undoubtedly exploring all the possibilities, and should have an announcement soon. It is to be hoped that for the sake of allied unity and for the sake of allied success in the war as a solid coalition, they will turn the wheels toward prompt creation of the United Nations council.

This North African affair is something in which Moscow and Chungking have an interest, because the success of allied arms will depend upon how quickly we clean the Axis out of Tunisia and open up the Mediterranean supply line to the East. It is a United Nations matter.

Similar irritating and explosive controversies will be coming up frequently as the war progresses. We have it in Yugoslavia now. Every reconquered territory will present these issues. That is inevitable. But it is possible to create United Nations machinery now so that these issues can be resolved without necessity bickering between Allies. Such a controversy as this one in North Africa causes rapid deterioration in Allied relations. We cannot afford that. Nobody profits but the Axis.

I would feel better about it and I should think congress and the public would be reassured, if Sumner Welles, the under-secretary of state, made a trip to North Africa at once.

No matter how Roosevelt and Churchill work at out a man like Welles ought to go over for his own checkup on the spot. This is most important, because we cannot afford to have misunderstandings about North Africa. Unfortunately this affair will encourage isolationism again, and damaging hopes of making this victory stick.

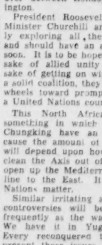

Our best American international technician is Secretary Welles. He has carried the good neighbor policy through many intricate and stubborn difficulties in the Western Hemisphere. He knows the background of the North African trouble and is well equipped to smooth out difficulties and establish a working rear area that is safe for General Eisenhower's military campaign.

Robert D. Murphy, who did the diplomatic spadework for the United States in North Africa before the landing, undoubtedly deserves the praise he has received. But he has had a difficult and dangerous, growing out of his long period of dealing with the politicos of the area, especially Vichyites. In a short visit, undoubtedly could do much to improve political conditions and he would be invaluable as a far better position to make decisions in the future.

Surely the army and General Eisenhower would welcome such a mission by Secretary Welles. They have all they can do to carry off the Tunisian campaign successfully. It is our first big show in this war and we can't afford to flop. General Eisenhower has no time to work on the politicos, and keep them happy. He has to lean on Murphy in that field.

If North Africa is a military test for us, it is also a diplomatic test

Hang On, New York

FROM THE MINNEAPOLIS STAR JOURNAL

New York City is alarmed about its future. The metropolis has lost 400,000 population in the past two years. Unemployment is a continuing problem, in contrast to the situation in most of the nation. Defence contracts are not allocated where. Commercial shipping, upon which the port of New York depends, has been negligible amounts. A recent letter to the New York Times, by the chief officers of the Port of New York Authority, takes some of the despair and sounds the optimistic note that the home town will weather its difficulties.

We second the prediction. Some years ago the small villages of America were consigned to oblivion. Then dust bowl residents were urged to desert their land because rain had gone away for good, fertility had been wrenched from the soil and the burden of increasing debt was too much. Yet the villages have survived to furnish stalwart men to the armies and careful workers to war plants. The erstwhile dusty farm lands of the midwest have just produced their greatest crops, and the men are back on the family farmsteads.

Let New York take heart. The city has a good location on a nice ocean. The wealthiest nation in the world stretches out from the town's back door. As a flag stop on the airways of the future, New York, of course, is no better situated than a thousand other spots, but we advise against firing the mayor and giving up the corporate form of government. They may be needed again when peace comes.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Britain Reciprocates Heavily on Lend-Lease Deal With U.S.

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON. — Lend - Lease Administrator Ed Stettinius is headed for a stormy reception when he testifies before the House Appropriations Committee on the new $31,000,000,000 budget for lend-lease aid to our allies.

The hearing will be behind closed doors, and Republican committeemen talk confidently of exposing how some hot questions about alleged irregularities in lend-lease operations, including a charge that we purchased chant ships from Canada which were later given to Britain.

Drew Pearson

Chairman Emory S. Land of the Maritime Commission has admitted at a recent executive meeting of the House Merchant Marine Committee. Another charge to be fired at Stettinius is that we sent scarce farm implements to Britain while our own farmers were minus.

The meeting, however, will not be public. For the record, the Lend-Lease boss has a surprise of his own in store for the committee. He is ready to present details on "reciprocal" lend-lease — namely services we are getting from the British.

Other Side

The American public has heard little about this phase, but we have received considerable free aid while the building, repairing of ship repairs, barrage balloons for our coastal cities, anti-aircraft guns and the large naval base in the war zone, completely built, equipped and paid for by the British.

The British also have turned over to our forces in England, without cost, a huge air depot and an adjacent airdrome with an operating personnel of 5,000 workers paid by the British government.

In addition, Great Britain has built several large cantonments, warehouses and other facilities for our troops—all without cost to Uncle Sam.

The President once compared lend-lease to supplying a hose to put out a fire in your neighbor's house. The house is extinguished but the hose is destroyed. It is still a good investment because you prevent your own home from burning down.

Save Gas

Some few Washington bigwigs are careless about gasoline rationing, but they are exceptions. Most of the public officialdom is scrupulously careful.

The Chief Justice of the United States, for instance, is riding a truck. Chief Justice Stone has discarded his private car as a means of getting to and from the Supreme Court, and instead hitch-hikes in the delivery truck which runs errands for the Court. In addition, Stone is one of the walkingest members of the Court.

The White House uses 11 cars now, against 15 a year ago, and these include trucks for the White House mail, as well as cars for the President and staff. White House Secretary Marvin McIntyre now rides to work in a Ford instead of a Packard.

Vice President Henry Wallace last fall abandoned his 16-cylinder limousine in favor of a humble five passenger sedan. Every morning he walks the five miles from the Wardman Park Hotel to the Capitol, and rides home in the evening.

Speaker Sam Rayburn uses his official car sparingly. He often walks from his apartment on Du-Pont Circle to Seventh St., where he takes a street car to the Capitol.

Senator Thomas of Oklahoma gets to work on foot or by bus. The other day a Capitol clerk gave him a lift from a bus stop on Sixteenth street.

Approximately twenty Congressional cars are jacked up in the Senate garage, to be unused as long as gas and tires are short.

Milo Perkins, chief of the Board of Economic Warfare, shuns the use of his official car in driving from home to office. Instead, he has joined a car pool with six other BEW members who live in the same section.

Arab Unrest

Although the French political situation in North Africa has made the headlines, the Arab situation is almost worse. Cables say flatly that unless the Arabs get food and clothing, there will be trouble.

German broadcasts are responsible for the unrest. Before the invasion, the German radio told the Arabs that food and clothing shortages were the result of the U.S.S.R. forces are feasting upon the countryside like a horde of locusts.

British blockade.

After the invasion, the German radio declared that "the invading Jews" started the propaganda, there are severe shortages of three articles indispensable to the Arabs —tea, sugar, and cotton cloth. The Arabs, who place great faith in ritual, the severest blow is lack of cotton cloth for shrouds for the dead.

And since the Arabs greatly admire the strong, they fail to understand why the "great United States" is unable to supply their simple wants.

Clothing

For relief cases food and clothing are already being shipped. But it is a terrific problem, extending to the population of 17,000,000 Arabs in the three states—Morocco, Algeria, and Tunisia. Most Arabs have money to buy provisions—but there are no provisions.

In fact, the native workmen employed by the U.S. Army are asking payment in food and clothing. Money is of no use.

Both Gen. Eisenhower and State Department's Robert Murphy agree that supplies must be rushed. They have even gone so far as to suggest that supply ships could fill in the corners among tanks, guns and munitions with food and clothing. Eisenhower estimates that 40,000 tons of clothing a month could be shipped in this way without adding a ship to the convoys.

But when the ships arrive, he has another problem for the port facilities are overtaxed, and even after a ship has passed through sub-infested waters, it may have to lie in port for days before it can get to a dock.

My Day

BY ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON — Yesterday was certainly a day packed full of interest. Mrs. Lewis Thompson met me and we visited the Marlboro hospital for the insane, in Monmouth County, New Jersey. It is extremely interesting because it is built on the cottage plan. This is by far the most successful way of treating patients with mental disorders, or for that matter, patients with any ailment that means a long period of hospitalization.

We met here with some of the group of Mennonites, who are conscientious objectors, and who have volunteered to serve in hospitals for mental cases. There are a very fine group of young men and bring a spiritual quality to their work because of their religion. In many ways, this is probably raising the standard of care given the patients.

From there we went to call on General van Dusen at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey. Here I saw a most interesting laboratory project where women are being trained to work in producing the necessary crystals for radio work. This is precision work and requires only a high school education, though there are women working in this plant who have degrees of many kinds and, of course, do many kinds of work.

I had a long talk with General Clewell and Captain Freedman, who are in charge of the psychiatric clinic here. This is the only complete clinic of its kind in a classified centre and I can not help believing that it should be duplicated in every classification centre in the country, particularly now that eighteen and nineteen year old boys are being inducted.

In New York City they have carried on an experiment in a small way with psychiatric social workers and nurses in the induction centres. Some schools have furnished histories of their graduates which can be used as background examinations at induction time. Even if this could be done everywhere, which of course, is not being done, there would still be a need for the more careful work that can be done at a classification centre, if all the military people who have watched this work attest to its usefulness, and are tremendously impressed by what has been achieved at Fort Monmouth.

We had lunch in the U.S.O. cafeteria in Red Bank, N.J., which was crowded, so I sat on a stool at the counter and munched my sandwich and drank my cup of coffee. Then I met with the ladies of the press and attended the Monmouth County Social Welfare annual meeting and spoke on such aspects of the British scene as might have some connection with the welfare work of the association.

R.A.F. Planes Raid Targets In Ruhr Area

By SIDNEY J. WILLIAMS
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

LONDON, Jan. 22. — British heavy bombers, returning to the attack on the heart of German war industry, bombed objectives in the Ruhr during the night, starting big fires.

Announcement that four bombers were missing indicated that a force of up to 100 planes took part.

Heavy clouds prevented observation of full damage, the Air Ministry said in its communique.

A small force of German planes bombed towns near the southeast coast of England early last night and, a communique said, caused slight damage but no casualties.

It was added that the destruction of an additional German plane Wednesday has been confirmed, making a total of 15.

The death toll in the daylight bombing Wednesday of a children's school reached 37 today. Plans were announced for a mass funeral next Wednesday.

Rescue squads last night tunneled under debris to reach a part of the classroom in which the children were trapped, but found only additional bodies.

There were signs that the failure of air raid sirens to sound in the school area, and the failure of barrage balloons to rise, was about to cause angry protests in the house of commons.

For some time it had been customary for sirens to sound only when more than one plane approached London. Now, it was understood, the alarm would be ordered whenever even a single plane approached.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

QUITE in keeping with the Weather Man's temperature juggling efforts of the past few days, Varsity and Latter Day Saints set all-time lows in shooting accuracy in their hoop league game at Westglen last night.

Golden Bears had a total of 40 field scoring attempts and registered only four times for a 10 per cent showing. By virtue of the sudden recovery in the last recovery in the last quarter, Hon. Solon Low's usually accurate Saints boosted their percentage for the game to 16.4, making good on 11 of their total of 67 chances.

Varsity had 12 shots in the final period and never clicked once, while Saints cashed in on six out of 19. Worst showing of the winners was one basket out of 19 tries in the first session and they made only two out of 15 stick in the second and a pair out of 14 count in the third. The Bears failed nine times in 11 in the first quarter, eight out of nine in the second and seven in eight in the third.

SONTAG'S OFF NIGHT

PHIL SONTAG, holder of the league's record single game score on 32, collected only seven points last night. Coach Paul Kirk had evidently delegated Al Manifold to shadow the Saints top man and the big Bear made quite a thorough job of it.

Sontag rang up only a single point in the first half and he had 12 field tries. Phil, however, got three baskets out of 11 attempts in the second half. Sammie Sheckter, of Varsity, never had one basket out of 12 shots in the game, but he was dynamite on free throws, ringing the bell five out of six times.

Bechtels had an accuracy percentage of 26, getting results 17 times out of 66 shots. Air Transports come through on just 18 of their 88 attempts for 17 per cent.

HERE AND THERE . . .

RATHER a coincidence but both Jack E. Blakeney and E. E. Blakenagle wick rink and the Royal quartet skipped by Mrs. A. Christiansen failed on the hurdle in the women's bonspiel. After registering five straight wins, neither was able to make it six in a row yesterday.

Wilf Boyce, coach of both senior and juvenile Y.M.C.A. cage teams leaves today for an eastern point, having joined the R.C.A.F. He was tendered a complimentary banquet Thursday night, and was the recipient of a suitable gift. Reg. Robertson is the new coach of the seniors and Solon Neilson will look after the juveniles.

Edmonton District Thoroughbred Society is holding its annual meeting and dinner at the Macdonald tonight. R. James Speers of Winnipeg is the guest speaker.

Varsity Beaten 28-14; Bechtels Shade Air Transports 41-36

Saints Now Lead Men's Hoop League

Bob Aitken Top Scorer For Night

LATTER DAY SAINTS took sole possession of first place in the standings of the Men's Basketball League when they outscored Varsity's Golden Bears 28-14 in the front half of the double-header at Westglen gym on Thurs day night. Bechtel, Price and Callahan nudged in ahead of Air Transport Civilians 41-36 in the second.

As a result of the loss, Varsity dropped into a tie for second spot with U.S. Army Engineers. Three teams are now deadlocked for third position—Bechtel, Price & Callahan, Y.M.C.A. and Alcans, while City Police and Air Transports are nyet in order.

Bob Aitken of Bechtels was high scorer for the night with a total of 13 points. His team-mate, Earl Nichols, Alma Baker of Saints and Pat Denino, hustling forward for Transports, all collected 12 each.

Neither Latter Day Saints nor Bears hit their usual stride last night, but the Hon. Solon Lows club came back somewhat in the final quarter, holding their opponents to a blank while tossing in 13 points for themselves.

Of these Alan Pendleton and Alma Baker each contributed a pair of baskets, three points going to Blaye Stevens and only a brace to the sharp-shooting Phil Sontag.

Saints had a 6-5 margin at the end of the first quarter. Sontag, Harold Francis and Stevens scoring on free throws and Baker adding three points, one a field basket. Jack Switzer accounted for all five of Varsity's.

Burns Larsen dropped in a field goal for the students and Sammie Sheckter made good on two free throws to offset the two baskets made by Baker in the second session, which left the half-time count 10-9 for Saints.

Varsity was again in arrears one point at the three-quarter whistle, Al Manifold getting a field goal and Sheckter netting three on fouls. Sontag scored two baskets and Baker a single point for Saints.

Following is the box score:

BECHTELS DEFEAT TRANSPORTS 41-36

Air Transports and Bechtels battled or even terms for most of the entire route with the latter squad being hard pressed in the final few minutes to maintain their five-point lead.

Transports went ahead in the first quarter 5-2, baskets by Les Huston and Pat Denino along with a single marker by George Capitola giving them the advantage. Winfield McKeon scored for Bechtels.

Nine points by Bob Aitken and a basket by Nichols put Bechtels back in the game in the second quarter and enabled them to hit the half-way whistle in a 15-13 tie. Morey La Vold, Capitola, Denino and

Irons Title Play On at Montreal

MONTREAL, Jan. 22.—(CP)—The battle for the Lloyd Victoria Jubilee trophy, emblematic of the singles rink Irons championship of the Canadian branch of the Royal Caledonian Curling Club, went here today at district rinks, with some of the biggest guns from Ottawa and Quebec clubs in the line.

R. C. Braithwaite's Royal Montreal rink of Dr. W. C. Bushell, R. H. Gilfean and J. H. Norris will be back to defend the title they won last year.

Maple Leafs Triumph Over N.Y. Rangers by 7-4 Score

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—(CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs defeated the tail-end New York Rangers 7-4 last night in a National Hockey League fixture. A paid crowd of 9,563 saw the game.

After a listless first period, Leafs jumped into a two-goal lead with second-period counters by Jack Forsey and Babe Pratt. The game hit its high spots in the third with nine goals and a brief but hectic fight.

The battle started innocently enough with Rangers' Ott Heller rushing Bud Poile after a tussle along the boards. Reg Hamilton rushed to Poile's assistance and was immediately enmeshed in an exchange of blows with Bryan Hextall.

They went to the ice with Bryan on top, still hammering away.

Hextall and Hamilton were given minor penalties and were separated by policemen when they attempted to continue the fight in the box.

Former Giant Likes New York

SOMERVILLE, Mass., Jan. 22.—(AP)—The war has led Frank (Shanty) Hogan, former Giants catcher, to do things that even the invincible John McGraw couldn't make him do.

McGraw would have considered he had reached the millennium if he could have awakened Hogan in time to report for 10 a.m. practice. Now, Hogan, a ship rigger, gets up at 5:30 a.m.—and likes it.

"The swellest thing about working in a shipyard is that you never get fined," said Hogan.

"During the five years I caught for the Giants, McGraw fined me a total of $4,000. No wonder some ball clubs can afford to pay big salaries. They take it back from you in fines."

Hogan said McGraw reached the peak when he "lashed" him for $50 for spending a night at his folks' home and then it up to $200 during a game argument.

Detroit Smashes Boston's Five-Game Winning Streak

DETROIT, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Detroit Red Wings scored two crucial goals to smash a five-game winning streak of the pace-setting Boston Bruins with a 3-2 victory in a National Hockey League game last night. Eddie Wares slapped home a 50-foot shot for the winning marker less than seven minutes from the finish.

The Bruins, holding a 2-to-1 margin going into the last period on goals by Buzz Boll and Flash Hollett, tried to crawl into a defensive shell, but Jack Stewart squared the count for Detroit on his first goal o: the year and Wares connected less than six minutes later.

The victory tightened Detroit's hold on second place in the league standings, 2½ games behind the Bruins.

The Wings had every license to win, for they bombarded cool Frankie Brimsek through 60 minutes, compelling him to make 39 saves. Johnny Mowers, meanwhile, had it easy with only nine stops.

Five Finals Set for Today

Blakeney and Christiansen Rinks Both Beaten Yesterday

WITH the two biggest upsets of the week turning up in Thursday's games, the annual northern Alberta women's bonspiel finished today with five finals scheduled for the afternoon at the Royal rink.

After winning five straight, Mrs. C. E. Blakeney's strong Sedgewick rink was beaten 15-13 in the Grand Challenge semi-final by Mrs. C. Cameron of the Alberta Ave. Club on the early draw and then lost out 13-3 to Mrs. B. A. McCallum, of Leslieville in the final of the Cooper (Visitors) event at 2 o'clock.

Mrs. A. Christiansen's Royal rink, the other unbeaten quartette at the start of play yesterday came safely through her Challenge semi-final against Mrs. T. Cottrell, Granite in the morning, winning out 10-5, but succumbed 8-5 to Mrs. J. Leander, also of the Royal in the Dentyne (City) on the noon draw.

Finals in the Challenge, Hudson's Bay, Jackson and Dentyne (City) are all set for the noon draw and the Sheppa.d will be decided at 3 o'clock, two games still remaining in the lower half to bring out a winner to meet Mrs. A. Roggeveen of Sedgewick.

Mrs. Christiansen and Mrs. Cameron are the finalists in the Grand Challenge while Mrs. S. Walkinshaw, Alberta Ave., and Mrs. F. A. Mercer, Royal, will meet in the last round of the Hudson's Bay.

Top honors in the Jackson lies between Mrs. P. Rose, Granite, and Mrs. E. Garlough Alberta Ave., Mrs. L. S. LeClerc is waiting in the final of the Dentyne (City) event for the winner of the Mrs. W. Mowbray (Alberta Ave.) versus Mrs. S. Walkinshaw (Alberta Ave.) semi-final which is on the early draw today.

Mrs. Leander after defeating Mrs. Christiansen 8-5 on the noon draw in the Dentyne was unable to get going against Mrs. Mowbray for a place in the fours and lost out 12-0. Mrs. LeClerc secured her berth in the final of that event by eliminating Mrs. F. A. Mercer 10-9 Thursday morning.

Mrs Mercer reached the final of the Hudson's Bay by winning from Mrs. D. Harper, Alberta Ave., 13-8, while the other finalist halted Mrs. LeClerc 13-4 on the 9 oclock draw.

Mrs. Rose won from Mrs. Mowbray 11-5 and Mrs Garlough beat Mrs. O. Brown, Granite 7-6 to gain the finals in the Jackson.

After the second end Mrs. Blakeney was never a serious contender against Mrs. B. McCallum, of Leslieville in the Visitors final.

The McCallum rink took a lead of two in the first end and although the Sedgewickers picked up a singleton in the next end they were not gaining their usual strong game, while the McCallum quartette was clicking all along the line.

Score by ends:

Blakeney	010	000	002	0	–	3

Plan Co-operative Horse Race Meet At Gulfstream

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Allen T. Simmons, wealthy Akron, Ohio, Turf enthusiast and radio manufacturer, said Thursday that a group of horsemen is considering the feasibility of holding a co-operative horse race meeting at Gulfstream Park, about 16 miles north of Miami.

"We've been trying to work out some kind of deal," he said, to help those stranded here with 1,200 thoroughbreds when both Miami tracks—Hialeah and Tropical Park—closed down because of the ban on automobile pleasure driving.

A committee inspected the track —which has been closed since it opened in 1938 and operated only three days—and found that it could be put into condition for racing in about 10 days, Simmons reported.

Simmons pointed out that regular inter-city buses and trains run alongside the plant, and added that it is possible to approach within a few blocks of the site by boat from Miami.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—English horsemen apparently undaunted by the continuation of the war since the latest Newmarket blooded-stock sale brought one of the highest prices in British turf history . . . Top price was bid for Olein, a bay mare out of Grand Peace and Colombo, who went for 17,000 guineas.

Olein's dam, Grand Peace, a beautiful 13-year-old mare, went for the high price of 5,700 guineas . . . or $35,000 . . . American horsemen would be hard-pressed to equal the English turfmen at those prices.

California boxing fans were given an unexpected and pleasant surprise recently when Belle Marticil, only woman in the world ever to hold a state license to referee box ing stepped in and handled an en tire show . . . Miss Martell was forced into action when the state athletic commission referee ran out of gas and couldn't keep his appointment . . . She also is licensed as a timekeeper and announcer and fined, refereed and announced the entire card . . . She worked the first half of the card in evening clothes but changed into a more practical outfit during the intermission . . . It definitely made boxing history of a pleasant sort, for a change.

YANKS NEED FIELDERS

FOR the first time in the memory of many a veteran baseball man, the New York Yankees are in a bad way for outfielders. They may have been short of pitchers at times and their infield may have needed a reoleeement once in a while, but not for years had the club been beset by the picket-line problem It now faces. . . .

Manager Joe McCarthy lost Henrich to the services in the middle of last season and is now faced with the loss of one-man team, Joe DiMaggio, leaving only the veteran Charley Keller to carry the load and Roy Weatherly, formerly of Cleveland, for another spot . . . Two rookies, Russ Derry and Bud Methany, are to fight it out for the remaining outfield position . . . both are inexperienced.

Basketball's personal foul rule feud is waxing hotter than ever in local circles, at least. . . . All coaches agree that a new rule to replace the four-personal statute is necessary because of the shortage of manpower but none agree on the exact makeup . . . A five-four idea has been broached but Nat Holman of C.C.N.Y. offers the best suggestion yet . . . Holman believes that the limit should be removed entirely but to protect players from indiscriminate fouling, the opposing team should be awarded an additional free throw for every foul a player commits after he has been charged with four. . . . "Players will be kept in the game that way and a deliberately malicious type of play will be prevented," he says.

TRAINING AT HOME

SPEAKING of the baseball training camp situation, the most humorous item concerns the Washington Senators, who plan to train at home . . . It will be a good trick if they can do it . . . the way Washington is jammed, the Senators won't be able to lay down a bunt without fouling somebody official.

Funny thing about Dolph Camilli of the Dodgers and Bill Terry, once of the Giants. Two of the best first basemen the game has ever seen, Dolph wants to get out of baseball and Terry wants to get back in . . . If you feel like a good long shot, risk a fiver that Terry will wind up in some executive capacity with the Philadelphia Phils. . . . He conferred recently with prexy Gerry Nugent and it wasn't about the weather.

Only remaining sour note in an otherwise harmonious major league setup is lack of a governmental ruling on salaries . . . Most clubs as yet don't know whether or not to mail out their contracts and if they are signed, won't know for how long the raises or slashes will be valid.

KING'S COACHMAN RETIRES

LONDON. — (CP) — The King's head coachman, Frederick Mould, 64, custodian of the famous Windsor "greys," has retired on pension after 38 years in the royal service.

Released by Boston

Paul Waner, John Cooney Brought Back to Brooklyn

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Paul Waner and John Cooney, two of the oldest players in the major leagues and both former Dodgers, were brought back into the Brooklyn fold yesterday by Branch Rickey less than 48 hours after they had been released by Boston Braves.

The Dodgers president announced his action at a press conference along with an assortment of other information which included:

1—George Sisler, one of baseball's all-time great first basemen, will be a scout for the Dodgers in a new plan that will carry the search for talent to youthful sandlotters.

2—Pitcher Louis (Bobo) Newsom came here to see Rickey last Sunday, looked in good condition, and promised to win 20 games.

3—Pitcher Hugh Casey, who had announced his intention of enlisting in the United States Coast Guard replied to an inquiry from the club that he is classed 3-A in the draft and made no mention of any service.

4—First basemen Babe Dahlgren has been sold outright to Indianapolis of the American Association completing a deal that was first made by Larry MacPhail last summer. The original transaction called for Indianapolis to send the Dodgers two players, but one of them went into the service, voiding the deal. The outcome was that cash was agreed upon for Dahlgren who has had an extended career in both major leagues.

5—Leo Durocher, still undergoing a checkup at Mayo Clinic, will remain the Brooklyn manager until he is called for military service, if he is.

Rickey revealed that there had been considerable competition for the service of Cooney, an all-around player who some years ago was a pitcher and even now, at the age of 41, can do a good part-time job in the outfield or fill in at first base.

So far as he knew, Rickey said, there had been no bidding for the services of Waner, 40-year-old outfielder who played 15 years for Pittsburgh Pirates and led the National League in hitting three difficult seasons. Waner wired, offering terms, and Rickey consulted Durocher by telephone at Mayo Clinic. It was Durocher who decided that the Dodgers should give him another trial.

In the spring of 1941, after the Pirates had given Waner his release, Durocher signed "big poison" and declared he would be the Dodgers' regular rightfielder. But Waner got off to a bad start and was cut loose by Brooklyn less than a month from the start of the season. He quickly caught on with the Braves.

Buck Newsom Has Talk With Brooklyn Head

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Buck Newsom, the loquacious pitcher, gave Branch Rickey a "pleasant surprise" when he showed up in New York last Sunday to see the president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Rickey said Thursday.

"This fellow called me from Washington and said he would like to see me, so I told him to come ahead," Rickey recounted.

"Then in about an hour he called me back and said he didn't think it would be necessary for him to come here, so I told him, no, I didn't think it would be either.

Then he changed his mind again and came on, anyway.

"I never had talked to him before and I received a pleasant surprise. I expected to see someone weighing about 280 pounds, but he said he only weighed 221 and he looked it.

"We talked about many things, less about terms than anything else, I guess. He told me he was going to start training Feb. 15, but after we got through he changed his mind and said he would start Jan. 1" (last Sunday).

"The way things are I'm positive now I won't make any deal for him, although I previously had figured on trading him and had indicated as much. Leo Durocher is all for him."

At this point a reporter asked how many games Newsome had promised to win for the Dodgers. 20"

"Yes," Rickey replied almost sheepishly, "that was the exact number."

OTTAWA, Jan. 22 — (CP) — Ottawa Commandos of the Quebec Senior Hockey League last night announced acquisition of Eddie Slowinski, who played formerly for Winnipeg Monarch Juniors and the amateur Canadiens of the Q.S.H.L.

Slowinski, who enlisted in the army in Ottawa, will join Commandos next week. He is a right winger.

U.S. Urged to Halt Further Call-Ups

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Senator John Bankhead, Alabama Democrat, proposed yesterday that the United States concentrate on production of food and weapons and call on the other United Nations to furnish any additional fighting men need to win the war.

Declaring that some 7,000,000 Americans already have entered the service and that present plans call for the month addition of 400,000 more, Bankhead told the senate:

"In view of the absolute necessity of at least continuing and, if possible, increasing the production of war materials and instruments and implements, it is apparent that it will be dangerous to withdraw from war production many more men for service in the armed forces."

Bankhead said it seemed to him that the most practical solution "is to continue in position to serve ourselves and our allies as an arsenal for the production and supply of food and instruments of war and call upon our allies to furnish the additional manpower necessary to constitute any sized army that may be used to our advantage."

Supplies Delayed As Seamen Balk At Sunday Work

AKRON, O., Jan. 22.—(AP)—The Beacon Journal in a copyrighted story quotes six Guadeleanal veterans as declaring that the civilian crew of a merchant ship two miles off the island declined to land urgents needed supplies on a Sunday because of a union regulation.

The men worked two hours Saturday afternoon, then laid off until Monday morning and sailing marines had to take over the Sunday operations, the Beacon Journal said it was informed, adding that the story was cleared for publication by the office of censorship.

Agricultural Manpower Problems Will Be Discussed

To Conference

Hon. E. C. Manning, provincial secetary, who will represent Alberta at a meeting in Ottawa on Jan 28, where provinces will discuss revenue losses due to federal action with Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Alberta Names Minister for Ottawa Parley

Hon. E. C. Manning, provincial secretary, and minister of trade and industry, will represent Alberta at a conference in Ottawa on Jan. 28, where the question of compensating the provinces for revenue lost through Dominion regulations will be discussed with Prime Minister King.

Premiers of the provinces were invited but the Alberta cabinet decided at a meeting Thursday to have Mr. Manning go instead of Premier William Aberhart, who is busy with preparations for the session of the legislature that opens Feb. 18, and the Social Credit Party caucus on Feb. 16 and 17.

In announcing that Mr. Manning would represent the province at the meeting, Premier Aberhart said he was quite hopeful the Dominion government would have an acceptable plan for the provinces that would make up for the very sizeable sums lost through recent actions.

PROMISED TO PAY

"The Dominion government promised us it would make up the losses resulting from recently passed regulations" Mr. Aberhart said.

All provinces made strong representations to the federal authorities some time ago.

Largest single loss of revenue to the provinces results from the Dominion government's new liquor and beer curtailment measures. It was estimated by provincial treasury officials that Alberta will lose $1,000,000 annually therefrom.

Premier C. D. Conant of Ontario took the lead in arranging the meeting with Premier King.

Mr. Manning will likely leave Sunday night for Ottawa.

Improvements To Dance Halls Are Suggested

The bylaws committee of the city council, at its meeting Thursday afternoon, recommended to council that regulations be passed requiring progressive improvements each year in dance hall buildings to bring them to conform with the 1935 building bylaw requirements.

It was decided also to recommend that the city commissioners be instructed to make recommendations concerning improvements to be made in each individual dance hall, and that the issuance of a license be contingent on these improvements being carried out.

The committee recommended that a by-law should be prepared to govern the licensing of all places of public assembly, and recommend that "no license be granted for any place of public assembly not complying with by-law 781 of 1923 provided that with respect to any licensed premises complying with by-law number 341 of 1923 so used and licensed before the by-law 781 of 1935 was passed.

EXAMINE PREMISES

"The city commissioners shall examine, or cause to be examined, each and every such licensed premises, and lay down a program of progressive improvements to bring each such premises into condition as nearly approaching the requirements of the by-law number 781 of 1935, and that upon compliance with such requirements by the owners or licensees from time to time licenses may be issued, provided however that limited licenses may be granted.

The committee further recommended that the present licensing by-law be revised and amendments suggested requiring the licensing of all places of public assembly.

The action to license such places is being taken as a result of the recommendation of the commissioners in which attention is drawn to the fact that some have entertainment are used for games which might be even a greater panic risk than would occur on an open dance hall floor.

SHOULD BE LICENSED

The commissioners expressed the opinion that all halls should be licensed to permit the enforcement of safety regulations, and also to permit inspection.

The committee recommended also that city council ask for a charter amendment to give the city power to enter into any agreement with the Dominion government or the province of Alberta, or with any agency of either government, with regard to the construction of houses to relieve housing shortage due to war conditions, upon such terms and conditions as the governments or agencies may lawfully make and to do all acts necessary for or incidental to the carrying into effect of any such agreement.

The committee declined to recommend to city council that voting in municipal elections be made compulsory for burgesses.

Salvage collection drive in the Westmount area which was scheduled for Saturday, has been postponed until next week, it was announced Friday by salvage officials.

Missing Overseas

Flt. Sgt. John William Sproule, formerly of Edmonton, who is missing, following air operations overseas. He is the son of W. S. Sproule of 12019 80 street.

Name Members Move, Second Throne Speech

Clarence Edgar Gerhart, Social Credit Party M.L.A. for Acadia, Coronation, will move acceptance of the speech from the throne to be delivered at the next session of the Alberta legislative assembly that opens on Feb. 18. H. E. DeBolt, M.L.A. for Spirit River, will be the seconder.

Announcement of the mover and seconder of the throne speech was made Friday by Premier William Aberhart.

Both Mr. Gerhart and Mr. DeBolt were elected as Social Credit members at the last general election in 1940. It will be the first occasion that honor of moving and seconding the throne address has gone to either of these members.

Mr. Gerhart is a veteran of the First Great War, having served as a lieutenant in the Royal Air Force. He has been a druggist in Coronation for several years.

Mr. DeBolt farms in the Spirit River district.

Both members have been quite active at sessions of the Alberta legislature since they took their seats in the house. Each is an experienced debater.

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION

Should a ministry of food be created?

THE ANSWERS

SAM NEELANDS, salesman: With shortages of nearly every kind of food becoming the rule rather than the exception, it would not be a bad idea to have a ministry of food. There is one in Britain, and they have them in other countries. Possibly the Wartime Prices and Trade Board functions as a food ministry, but this is not specific. There should be a ministry, and a minister charged with the responsibility of seeing that "short" foodstuffs were equitably distributed, and also with the maintenance of supplies in all sections of the country.

JACK CAMPBELL, caretaker: The food situation in Canada is becoming so acute that it should be taken over and administered by a ministry and a full time minister. We have a food controller, but in my opinion the food situation has passed the stage where a controller should be handling the job. It has clearly reached the state where the responsibility should rest with a cabinet minister and the administration should be through a ministry.

FRED ORPEN, clerk: I cannot say that I am in favor of the creation of a food ministry. We have a food administrator who seems to be doing a good job of keeping supplies of rationed articles on the market. The food situation has not reached the point in Canada where a food ministry is necessary.

Man Discovered Dead in Bed by Own Brother

Third sudden death in the city in three days occurred Thursday when John Kampfler, 32, of 11322 93 street, was found dead in bed at 6:45 p.m.

Kampfler lived alone in a home he built last summer and was employed with the Canadian Pacific Air Lines. His brother, Frank, who is also employed with the Air Lines company, called at the house Thursday after failing to see his brother at work for the last two days and found the doors locked. He peered through a window to see his brother lying dead in bed.

Frank called H. Burden, the next-door neighbor, who notified the police of the discovery.

At the request of the brother, Kampfler's body was removed to the Connelly-McKinley funeral home.

TO INVESTIGATE

Dr. E. A. Braithwaite, chief provincial coroner, was notified and decided that a post mortem be held.

Frank, who resides at Suite 4, Heela block, is the only relative of the deceased in Edmonton.

On Tuesday Robert Manjop, 45, dropped dead after calling at a house and asking for a doctor, and Wednesday John Baumann, 60, was found dead on his bed by a friend.

Market Gardener Obtains Damages

Damages amounting to $2,082 were awarded to Oscar Vanderkirkoff, Edmonton market gardener, by Mr. Justice J. B. O'Connor against J. R. Edwards, North Edmonton farmer, and his hired man, William Knecht, in a judgment handed down in supreme court Friday.

The damages were awarded for injuries received when a truck operated by the defendant Knecht and owned by Mr. Edwards ran into a horse and democrat owned and driven by Vanderkirkoff on the Fort Trail on Sept. 5, 1941.

C. H. Grant, K.C., Edmonton barrister, acted for the plaintiff, and L. D. Hyndman, K.C., for the defendants.

The jurist found that the truck was being operated at an excessive speed, and that its operator was not keeping a proper lookout. He found also that the plaintiff did not comply with the provisions of the Alberta Highway Traffic Act as no reflectors were affixed to the democrat. He found that the degree of fault for the accident was 66 2/3 per cent with the defendants, and 33 1/3 per cent with the plaintiff.

Evidence disclosed that the plaintiff sustained injuries to his right arm that resulted in it being permanently crippled.

Preliminary hearing of the man-slaughter charge against Theodore "Ted" Bartz, 19, has been set for the city police court for Jan. 29. Bartz appeared before Magistrate A. L. Millar, K.C., Friday, when the date of the hearing was set. Bartz was driver of the delivery truck that is alleged to have struck John Donald Campbell, at the intersection of Whyte avenue and 107 street on Jan. 13. Bartz was arrested after Campbell died in hospital about an hour after the accident.

Because of greatly increased interest in Alberta following construction of the Alaska highway, the Alberta publicity department has published a small pamphlet furnishing essential details about the province. The pamphlet, made up by H. P. Brownlee, provincial statistician, will be sent to libraries and schools in the United States.

With continued cold weather, the fuel shortage throughout the province is becoming more acute. In Edmonton, however, no reports have come in of any householder being right out of coal, although with the demands that the extreme cold during recent days has made many bins are running low. Householders report that they have been burning at least a ton a week. School supplies are not seriously depleted, it is reported.

Mrs. C. McLaughlin, 17 Kirk-Alta apartments, has returned to Edmonton from Vancouver where she attended the funeral services of her nephew, Archibald John York, who died there recently after a long illness. A son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harry York and a grandson of the late Archibald York, all of Edmonton, Mr. York was born and received part of his schooling here. He was 28 years old at the time of his death. He is survived, in addition to Mrs. McLaughlin, by one sister, Mrs. Jean Grant of Vancouver.

Getting Around

with Jack DeLong

Alberta is to have a new sanatorium for the treatment of tuberculosis, aproviding building material can be obtained.

It has been suggested that in view of the critical housing shortage in Edmonton at the present time the one million dollars to be spent in construction of the "tan" could be better spent in the construction of 150 small dwellings in Edmonton. In the same quarter the observation is offered that probably about 150 families would be able and eager to finance the building of homes. Of the correctness of this second statement there can not be the shadow of doubt.

At the same time this situation is, to our way of thinking, the strongest argument against the provincial government bailing the building of a badly-needed public

Accommodation Bureau Houses 2,000 Persons

Two thousand persons have been placed in living quarters through the joint efforts of the Emergency Accommodation Bureau and the Y.W.C.A. in the last three months, Reg. T. Rose, executive secretary of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, announced Friday.

Of this total, 1,545 have been allocated more or less permanent quarters, and approximately 500 have been placed temporarily awaiting more adequate accommodation. A total of 775 others regarded as "transient visitors" have been housed for short periods of time ranging from one night to one week.

The accommodation bureaus were set up about three months ago when the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce brought to the attention of the city officials the growing need of such an organization to cope with this increasingly serious problem. Prior to that time the chamber had a special committee functioning for several months.

MOSTLY FROM THE U.S.

Majority of those placed are United States visitors stationed here during their employment with various northern projects, and dependents of men on active service.

The Y.W.C.A. has placed 745 on more or less permanent basis and found room for 175 transient visitors, while the emergency accommodation bureau has found established accommodation for 800 persons and temporary quarters for 500 others. Six hundred transients were found "overnight" accommodation as well by the bureau.

At the present time the Y.W.C.A. is greatly in need of bedroom and board and room accomodation for girls and will be glad to receive offers from house owners. The phone number is 23316.

NEED MORE SPACE

Though the emergency accommodation bureau has on its list a reasonable reserve of bedroom accommodation it is faced with the problem of finding more permanent housing for 500 visitors who have been placed only temporarily.

Since it commenced its activities three months ago the bureau has received offers from home owners for the use of 750 bedrooms and 200 other types of quarters including a limited number of suites and housekeeping rooms.

Suites and housekeeping rooms are still badly needed and the bureau would welcome more offers from city house owners. Their phone number is 28385.

Provincial Government Convening Conference To Take Place Feb. 2-3

Manpower problems of Alberta farmers will be discussed at a meeting of the consultive committee on agricultural services, convening Feb. 2 and 3 in the Legislative Buildings. In addition to manpower problems, such provincial organization as may be necessary to meet forthcoming situations in 1943 will be planned.

Hon. D. B. MacMillan, minister of agriculture, in announcing the coming meeting, drew attention to the close association during the last year, of his department and the department of national selective service. Mr. MacMillan added that any future arrangements will be made in co-operation with that body.

The consultive committee on agricultural services, recently appointed by the minister, will assist the department in the planning of programs and necessary services for farmers of the province.

The committee includes representatives of farm and municipal organizations, officials of the department of agriculture, and of the University of Alberta.

In addition to manpower problems, those of production will be dealt with, as well as steps necessary for Alberta to attain recently alloted quotas set for the province. Dominion representatives from the agricultural supplies board, national selective service, and the department of labor have been asked to attend this meeting.

"I AM A MURDERER" by Morris Markey

Has Anyone Conceived a Perfect Crime? Can You Find a Flaw in This One?

PROLOGUE

AT SOME minutes past 8 o'clock (Daylight Saving Time) of a September evening in the year 1940, I stood in full view of perhaps 30 men and women, all of whom were acquainted with me, at least by sight, and shot two bullets into the heart of Col. Wesley Hope Merriwether. I then moved, with such swiftness as may be forgiven in the circumstances, away from the scene.

This could lead you to believe that I am a fugitive from justice. But that is hardly the case. I am not a fugitive—in the sense of the word as one in flight. I live in surroundings of the utmost charm and serenity, with no care at all upon my mind and certainly no fear, while police officers of a whole continent search among the byways of a hedge-podge society for some trace of me. Such a trace they can never, possibly, find.

My—well, I suppose we must call it a vendetta, though I despise the word—has been accomplished. Perhaps, indeed, the whole purpose of my existence has met, and passed, its climax. At any rate, that is the best explanation I can provide for my present compulsion to set down these facts upon paper.

It is no doubt odd, at the age of 34, to be a man who has completed his work upon this earth, to be sitting beneath the awning which covers the afterdeck of his yacht, glancing out over the blue waters of the timeless sea, and dwelling upon memories left after the fashion of an ancient veteran of long-forgotten wars. But such, alas, is the truth of it.

Really? Well, perhaps within a certain while I shall hitch my wagon to another star. Though no star in all the heavens could be so glitteringly compelling as the last one. The pursuit of no dream so fascinating, so magnificently satisfying, as that which left Merriwether dead, and finished, and even a trifle pitiable because even in the extremity he did not lose his elegance.

Be that as it may. Would you care for the story?

CHAPTER I.

THE station wagon rolled along the level paved road, past the elms and the broad lawns of the manor houses. Cynthia Merriwether was driving, and it was an astonishing thing that she could invest even so commonplace an occupation with a spirit of zest and gaiety. She was a lovely creature, with golden red hair and bright blue eyes, and laughter that trailed through the open windows of the wagon to hang in the soft air.

It was in the nature of things that she should have not one companion, but three, and all of these three men. Henry Prentiss was beside her on the front seat, amiably assuring her that within the next two hours she would be bankrupt.

"You haven't a chance in the world, Miss Pretty," he said. "Even if your precious Whirlwinds and Tommy Hitchcock playing number three, they couldn't beat my crowd today. We're hot, I tell you."

"But remember," she said, "you're out of it. How can Clover get anywhere at all without the magnificent Prentiss—wonder of the west, southpaw marvel of the times?"

Prentiss laughed. "Clover goes up three goals. Pretty, when Prentiss takes to the sidelines, I'd rather have Mike in there any day, if Mike is mounted right. He will be today."

He was an easy sort of man. His blond hair was burnt with the sun and wind. His very blue eyes rarely lost their touch of laughter, of some profound and secret amusement that mudged his soul day in, day out. He was strongly made, and his shoulders, though perhaps, a trifle broader than they really were beneath the exaggerated checks of his pale tweed jacket.

Toby Parker, leaning between them from the back seat, was tight and nervous. "How do you get rated, anyway, Hank?" he asked. "I thought they ruled out left-handers three or four years ago."

Fred West, who sat beside him, was in quick agreement. "It's a dangerous stuff, you know, Hank. To tell the truth, I always go hay-wire when I see you coming down on the ball. Haven't the faintest idea what silly course you're going to play. Horror of smashing into you head on."

Both of the younger men were in boots and white breeches and the absurd gray-and-green checked shirts of the Whirlwind side. Behind them, on the floor of the wagon, were sticks and helmets, spurs and whips and spare track and camel hair coats and gaudily striped towels.

Prentiss grinned at them. "Well, it's a little like the time they ruled out spitball pitcher in baseball. All southpaws in good standing could keep on throwing in their rather unsanitary way until they wore out, but no new ones were allowed. Same as me in this game. The left-handers with a rating could go on playing, at least until that head-on collision removed them from the lists. I even think about its possibilities myself, sometimes."

Cynthia turned her head about to regard the younger men. The station wagon, by some special miracle, continued true upon its course. "You heartless are beginning to sound a little jittery," she observed. "Get your minds off the game. Think about Ginger Rogers or Fred Allen. Because you've got to win, you know. I've got millions riding on you. But millions."

"It feel a lot easier," Toby Parker said, "if you hadn't put all that jack on us. Even if it is only thousands instead of your crazy exaggeration, I don't like to play for anybody's chips but mine. And if it doesn't annoy you too much, Cynnie, there's a Mack truck coming out of Miller's drive."

She laughed and turned her eyes to the road. They slipped around the truck, and Cynthia exchanged a quick, amused glance at Henry Prentiss.

"You know," she said, "I don't really mind if they're a little ner-vi-ous."

I stood in full view of perhaps 30 men and women, all of whom were acquainted with me, at least by sight, and shot two bullets into the heart of Col. Wesley Hope Merriwether.

CHAPTER II

AS USUAL, the huge, pale green stands surrounding the Broken Hill Club polo field were empty and a little desolate even in the bright sunshine. That was not a polo year, and even in the best of polo years it required International matches, or at least the East-West games, to bring out the crowds.

. . . . . were put to it to attract mothers, fathers who . . . . . the game had gone to pieces since their day, and a thin sprinkling of debutantes. And, of course, a bored press photographer or two, hoping against hope for a spill bad enough to make a good picture.

Cynthia Merriwether tooled the station wagon down the length of the field, just beyond the sideboards, until she came up to the little cluster of men and horses gathered at the far end. She stopped from her seat and called out gaily to players and grooms, and patted a lean brown pony on the nose. Everybody grinned at her, and Captain Pugh, the umpire, got down from his tall chestnut to take both of her hands, and return her smile, and boast that she was ruining the game by betting too much money on it.

"Careful, Mr. Purlian," she said, "or you'll get no bid to the championship party I'm throwing on my winnings."

"Objections withdrawn!" he shout, and the grooms considered this a monstrously amusing remark.

Henry Prentiss helped Toby Parker and Fred West to unload their gear, and then went off to chat with his teammates. His right arm hung in a white linen sling and there were bandages around the hand. He gave assurances that no bones were broken, that he had suffered only a bad sprain and he spoke earnestly with the youthful Mike, who this day would ride in his place.

His admonitions were cheerful but exact—which pony to play in each period—what moves to make when Parker got on the ball with his fast mounts—what precautions to take against the same Parker's inherent weakness in the matter of fouling.

Then girths were brought up tight. The men began climbing into their saddles. And Henry Prentiss walked with Cynthia Merriwether over the soft grass to her box in the clubhouse enclosure.

When they were in their seats, they were surrounded by perhaps a hundred other spectators, who nodded to them, or waved and called greetings. The players rode out upon the field. Captain Pugh took his place in front of them as they lined up. He blew his whistle and bowled the ball fairly among the legs of the horses.

Mrs. Porter West, who sat some distance behind and above Cynthia and Prentiss, gave no very sharp attention to the opening moments of the play. It was true that her Fred was out on the turf and the horses were thundering off in their first long run. But he could take care of himself, and probably would win. He had the habit of winning—in all concerns saving those pertaining to Cynthia Merriwether.

She stared at Cynthia and Prentiss, her face without expression, but her eyes were drawn slightly together, and the poisons of frustration and resentment and anger brewed within her heart. It looked like a match. That was that. But this morning, after her own fought-out fully contrived plans were to be ignored, cast whimsically aside, and the family of West profoundly injured thereby.

Mrs. Porter West, was as the saying goes, of the old school: the old Long Island school which had carefully forgot that the family fortunes got their primordial start in paper bags or imitation velvet—forgot such uncouth affairs amid the sweet smells of the stable, the gentle langour of the beach. In that neatly ordered school, such trifling though necessary interludes as romance were guided by rules that were splendid in their simplicity.

Neither passions of the grand order, the perpetuation of blue blood, nor the sustenance of social prestige were the desiderata. The young were supposed to fall in love where it would do the most good. In such forthright fashion, those sinews which took their first nourishment from paper bags or imitation velvet were nurtured and renewed.

If a Beacham family fell upon troubled times, for example, it was the decent and proper thing for a Crandall family (currently able to increase its string of Irish hunters and even pay its tailors' bills) to send forth a youth or a maiden, as the case might be, and by the perfectly ordinary process of matrimony bring the situation into a seemly balance. When, betimes, the arrangement grew sour in the souls of the youthful individuals involved, there was always Reno, and a reshuffling of the marital cards easily to be effected.

The youths and the maidens had a deplorable word for this state of things. The word was: icky. But it was difficult for them to be too selfish or stubborn when roast prime of the family and No. 1 crushed oats for the mangers were at stake.

Not to put too fine a point upon it, Mrs. Porter West had reached the considered conclusion that Cynthia Merriwether was a suitable wife for Frederick Halliburton West, not merely Yale '37, but captain of Yale's polo team, and by no means neglected in the photographic art of either sporting page or rotogravure reports of hunt balls and kindered fetes.

That her son, Fred, had turned out to be really an amusing, and friendly, and unpretentious sort of young man did not enter into her calculations at all. Those calculations, on the contrary, were based in sound, realistic fashion upon the absurd things which all this excitement—silly wars and depressions and such—had done to the trust funds left behind when Porter Gordon West, sound horseman and furthermore an enviable judge of bonds, had gone to his ultimate peace.

To, his eternal praise, let it be said that Fred West was neither deceived nor a deceiver. When he moved dutifully beneath his mother's goad and broached the matter to Cynthia, he was direct if something less than subtle.

"To open it out," he said, "I'm nuts about you and want to marry you. To close it off, I suppose, I've got to tell you my family needs dough. You've got it, or your old man has. I'm just putting it straight on the line for you. There's no use my saying take it or leave it, because I know damn well you're going to leave it. But I've got the right to say that no matter how obvious it is, this money business hasn't anything to do with the way I go for you. Oh, hell—you're already bored with the whole idea. . . ."

She had not laughed. Which was something. She had taken his reluctant hand.

"You're sweet," she said. "That's the sweetest, nicest thing I ever heard anybody say. Listen, Fred. Just let's see a lot of each other this summer. What say? Wouldn't we be a couple of chumps to go off and quit speaking and having people sorry for us?"

"Oh, you mean that kid stuff."

"Certainly I do. Men have an awful time making any sense out of it when a girls says, 'I haven't got marriage in the back of my bean.' But they mean it—sometimes. I mean it now, Fred."

"You're O.K." he said. "How about something that comes in a glass with a lot of ice?"

Which was the extent of the wooing, and they got some deep, inner satisfaction out of it because she had called him a man.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Mistaken Emotions Bring Heart-Aches

When Kisses and Petting Have to Stand Test of Daily Grind It's Time to Find Out if It's Real Love

One of the curious things about love is that it is so difficult for one to diagnose our own cases and tell whether we are suffering from a chronic cardiac condition, or have merely a slight attack of heart burn that a dose of bicarbonate will relieve. That millions of men and women guess wrong is amply proven by the divorce statistics, yet they had all the symptoms, the thrills, the palpitations, the hot and cold flashes, the gone feelings that are popularly believed to be the signs of love.

They honestly thought that they were in love when they married, but so many of them found out that what they believed was a deathless passion was only a passing fancy, that it is no wonder that the prudent and hard-boiled youngsters of today ask for some reliable method of testing their own emotions to determine whether what they feel for some little cutie or some lad with a way with him, is the real thing in love or not.

And, alas, there is none to answer their question. No one can tell why love comes, nor how long it will last, nor when it will go, nor why. We only know that the sight of a girl's face will set a boy's pulse to racing one day and the next day it will drop back to normal, and that a girl will see a boy as a Fairy Prince for a week and then behold in him nothing but a grocery clerk ever after.

NATURE'S MYSTERY

This is one of the insoluble mysteries of life. Today and there is something sadder than the fact that almost all men and women marry because they think they cannot live without each other, and no matter of them find that they cannot live with each other.

But if men and women find it so hard to tell before marriage whether they are in love with each other or not, it is even more difficult for them to tell after marriage whether they have fallen out of love with each other. And, curiously enough, in both cases they apply the thrill test, and when they cease to palpitate over the sound of a footstep, they conclude they are no longer in love with the wives or husbands to whom they are united by years of comradeship, mutual interests, memories and all the things that tie a man and women closest together.

It is incredible but true that the great majority of husbands and wives seem to be unprepared for the inevitable slump that comes after marriage, which is nothing but the reaction from the strain of courtship and trying to live and act like cinema heroes and heroines instead of normal human beings.

Apparently they expect to go on living forever at high tension, with the husband always playing the great lover and pressing burning kisses upon his wife's lips, and for the wife to always be a glamorous creature, trailing around in pink chiffons and practicing all the arts and coquetries of a siren to keep him enthralled.

The wife forgets that when a man comes home tired and worn and hungry, with his nerves cut to fiddle strings by the worries of the day, he is in no mood for romantic dalliance. The husband does not take into consideration that being up all night with a sick baby is no beauty cure for a woman, and that after cooking three square meals a day for her family she naturally smells of the kitchen and Chanel Number 5. And both of them ignore the fact that they could no more endure a perpetual petting party than they could live on a steady diet of chocolate creams.

WEARIED OF REALISM

But for all of that, when their emotionalism over each other peters out, as it is bound to do in time, they decide that they no longer love each other and that their marriage is a failure. Hence the philanderers of both sexes who have wearied of the homemade bread of affection and crave fresh angel's food with a different flavor. Hence the husbands and wives who find that the kiss of a wife has gone stale and that only stolen ones are sweet. Hence the number of husbands and wives who get divorces for no better reason than that they are fed up with each other.

Hence the divorcees who thought they only wanted to be rid of their tired business men husbands, who no longer tarrilled them, to be perfectly happy, and who wander forlornly around from hotel to hotel and resort to resort, bored, lonely, trying in vain to be flirtatious, and knowing in their souls that they still love their husbands and long for nothing so much as to be back with them, watching them read and snooze behind their evening papers.

And hence the philandering husbands who think they are tired of their wives, who have grown fat, fat and forty and whose conversation could be sold for sleeping powder if it were put up in bottles, until they wake up some day to find that the gold-diggers have stripped them of their last cent and made them the laughing stock of all who know them.

Hence the husbands who think they have ceased to love their old wives and leave them to marry young girls with whom they have not a single thought or interest in common, and who are the most desolate of all men because there is no one to whom they can say: "Do you remember?"

What a pity, since love is the most important thing in the world to us, that we know so little about it.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

I am fearful, at times, that mothers do not write me what they are doing but only what they think they are doing. The hysterias of which I hear often seem to me to be terrifying. I put them down as mistakes of the parent on paper, not in practice.

Mrs. A.E.S. says her 4-month-old baby weighs 17 pounds, which is a very large size for a baby this age. She writes, "Her formula contains 14 ounces of water and enough corn sirup and evaporated milk to make 32 ounces in addition she has cod liver oil and orange juice. When I asked the doctor if she was doing all right he said to continue with the formula.

"Now, what I want to know is whether she should have strained foods and if so how do I prepare them?"

Your formula would be splendid if you transposed the milk and water. Fourteen ounces of evaporated milk, 4 to 5 tablespoons of corn sirup and enough water to make 32 ounces. Surely that is what you must have meant, otherwise your baby would be getting the equivalent of 36 ounces of milk daily. That is exorbitant for a child of any age.

You can begin strained foods. The most convenient way in which these are to be had is in cans from your grocer or druggist. Such strained vegetables and fruits are made of the tenderest, freshest foods; they are canned in a way to preserve their natural flavors and contents and they can be had in sufficient variety so the baby gets used to all kinds of diet tastes.

Just at first you serve only a teaspoonful or two. You increase this cautiously until the baby is taking a half a can at a feeding.

If you want to cook the vegetables at home, then you should cook and strain a few tender young vegetables, scrape them, cut in small cubes and steam until tender. Then press through a wire sieve and season delicately with salt.

This is quite a ceremony for a teaspoonful of vegetable so until your baby is taking an appreciable quantity, I do suggest you investigate the canned brands made just for baby feeding.

Our leaflet, "Feeding From Two to Nine Months," explains each step in the introduction of new foods to the infant. It may be had by sending a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Peanuts Bask in Ration Spotlight

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

The scarcity of meat, the high cost of fish and other animal protein spotlight peanuts, peanut butter and oil. They are excellent sources of complete protein and vitamin B1.

The following recipes, tested by The National Peanut Council, should be used on days when other protein sources are not available.

PEANUT FLOUR MUFFINS

Two-thirds cup flour, 2-3 cup peanut flour, 2-3 cup corn meal, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons melted fat or peanut oil.

Sift dry ingredients together. Combine milk and egg. Blend the two mixtures. Add the melted fat or peanut oil. Bake in greased muffin or corn stick pans in a 425 to 450d F. oven for 20 to 30 minutes.

SWEDISH SUPPER RING

One-half recipe peanut flour biscuit dough, 1 cup cooked ground meat, 1 cup coarsely ground blanched peanuts, 1 tablespoon minced onion, 1 pimiento, minced, 1 small green pepper, minced, salt and pepper, meat stock or milk bacon.

Roll out biscuit dough to ¼ inch thickness. Mix meat with peanuts and seasonings. Add enough stock or milk to moisten. Spread meat mixture on the biscuit dough and roll like a jelly roll. Form into a ring and place on greased shallow pan. Cut diagonal slashes toward the center, at intervals of 2 inches. Turn cut section flat on the tin and lay strips of bacon in each slash. Bake 45 minutes at 375d F. Serve hot with a tomato sauce.

Sunday's Menu

Breakfast: Apple sauce, whole wheat cereal, enriched toast, jelly coffee, milk.

Dinner: Clear tomato soup, oven fried chicken, peanut flour muffins, buttered kale, escarole salad orange sherbet, sponge cake, tea milk.

Supper: Waffles with creamed chicken and eggs, fruit compote tea, milk.

One of the unique hands of the national tournament was given to me by Dr. Louis Mark of Columbus, O. "Doc" is one of the enthusiastic leaders of bridge in Columbus. He gets a real thrill out of unusual hands such as this one, which he defended in the national tournament at Syracuse.

After winning the first trick, Dr. Mark (East) led another spade, forcing dummy to ruff with the eight of diamonds. The ace of trumps was cashed, and then the declarer had the problem of getting into his own hand to complete taking out trumps. He therefore led a series of clubs and led a second round.

Dr. Mark, disregarding the declarer's ruffies, played the king of clubs under the ace—the Deschapelles Coup. West won the second club trick and in response to Dr. Mark's play of the ♠10 led the third club.

Now you can see that either the ten or the jack of diamonds is bound to win a trick and set the contract.

Curlers Gather at Corona Hotel For Annual Banquet and Meeting

A NEW BOW

Screen actress Juanita Stark's new pompadour hat takes a bow—right up the front. The bow is of grosgrain and the small crown is of black straw.

Enthusiastic "bonspielers" who have been faithfully attending games sponsored by the Northern Alberta Ladies' Curling Association held this week at the Royal Curling Rink, took time off Thursday evening to enjoy the annual banquet and meeting of the association held in the dining room of the Corona hotel. On presentation of a report from the nominating committee, Mrs. J. Quesnel was appointed president for the ensuing term.

Elected patroness for the coming year were: Mrs. J. C. Bowen, wife of His Honor the Lieutenant Governor; Mrs. J. W. Fry, wife of His Worship the Mayor; and Mrs. A. J. Kent, retiring president. Vice-presidents for '43 will be Mrs. E. Garlough and Mrs. J. Adair; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. A. Bonneau.

Seated at the head table, which was decorated with silver baskets of daffodils, were Mrs. Kent, Mrs. Fry, Mrs. R. L. Smith, Mrs. Quesnel, Miss Adala Millward, Mrs. Adair, Mrs. C. R. Cameron, Mrs. A. Gillilan, Mrs. J. Cooper and Mrs. George Williamson.

Toast to the King was proposed by Mrs. Quesnel, and Mrs. Smiths proposed a toast to the visitors. Responding to the latter toast were Mrs. McDowell of Jasper, Mrs. C. J. MacLeod of Edson, Mrs. Harold Brown of Edgerton, Mrs. B. A. McCallum of Leslieville, Mrs. A. Maduik of Calmar and Mrs. C. E. Blakeney of Sedgewick. Toast to the press was proposed by Mrs. J. Adair, and responded to by Miss Millward.

Mrs. Kent, past-president, was chairman for the evening. She was presented with a gift by Mrs. Quesnel, on behalf of the association in appreciation of her services rendered during the past year.

A program followed, which consisted of vocal selections, by Miss Berneice MacBeth, readings by Mrs. E. Reeque and Mrs. Wyll, and community singing, conducted by Mrs. G. Rice. Accompanist was Mrs. J. Barley.

Committee in charge of arrangements included Mrs. Quesnel, convener, Mrs. Rice, Mrs. D. Rose and Mrs. J. Dawson. More than 150 were in attendance.

National Group On Industry Is Organized

TORONTO, Jan. 22—Believing that women and girls are in industry not only for the duration of the war but for years after, the National Council of the Y.W.C.A. has organized a National Committee on Industry. This committee, the first of its kind in the Y.W.C.A. organization since the last war, is headed by Dr. Margaret Stocking of the Social Science Department, University of Toronto, formerly of the International Labor Office, Geneva. The secretary is Miss Margaret Kinney, formerly with the National Staff Student Christian Movement of Canada, Toronto.

Pointing out that there were 1,200,000 employed women in Canada as at September, 1942, with an expected increase of 25,000 per month, Miss Kinney stated it was safe to estimate that a very large percentage of these women were employed in industry. "Many of these girls and women are facing duties for the first time and have had no experience in working with a large number of other workers. They also have to learn and understand the importance of their work in the war effort and to acquire a sense of solidarity with all war workers, with the armed forces and with civilians. This is especially important for women who come to industry from farms, household employment and private homes.

RECREATIONAL OPPORTUNITY

"Another urgent requirement for women in industry is the opportunity for play, recreation, entertainment, self-expression and education. The Y.W.C.A. Industrial Committee will work in an attempt to build up health, safety, and adjustment to the importance of a job in the production line," according to the new secretary.

In working out plans for industrial girls, Miss Kinney states it is the intention of the Y.W.C.A. to seek the close co-operation of the whole community, especially the churches, trade unions, industrial management, government agencies, etc. The program will belong to the women and will be designed to permit them to formulate their own plans and conduct their own activities. In order to insure the most democratic functioning of planned activities the Y.W.C.A. will work in close co-operation with workers' organizations.

Prime purposes of the Industrial Committee are: to study needs of women in industry; to assist in formulating plans to meet these needs in regard to recreation, housing, health, working conditions, social education and morale; to coordinate and assist the work of local committees on women in industry; to study and interpret government regulations concerning the welfare of women in industry.

What To Do

When is the proper time to give a baby shower?

Answer—Many people give baby showers before the birth of the infant, but really they should be given about three or four weeks after the baby is born.

Only close friends of the mother should be invited and the gifts they bring should be useful and pretty things for the child.

This shower gift does not take the place of the gift you send the baby when its arrival is announced but is given in addition to that.

It is much more considerate to shower the new mother in her own home than expect her to travel to another's home at this time.

There are many pretexts on which you can get the mother out of the house, and allow the guests to come in, or you may all arrive at once and surprise her that way.

MARY'S LITTLE LAMB GOES TO WAR WITH ALLIED FLYERS

Mary had a little lamb—but now the bombardiers have it. Just in case you're looking for and can't find a trace of the best of all budget fur coats—mouton—look at the photograph at left, and note: it used to be made of three shearlings, or three little lambs. Then look at the photo above and note: this bombardier's flying jacket takes from 12 to 15 shearlings. In short, three mouton coats make one complete combat suit. And that's exactly what goes on with all lamb shearlings, or skins, that are produced in Canada and the United States. Not only bombardiers, but also pilots, navigators and all the flying fighters get them. For the same reason, sheepskin coats are out for the duration. And, likewise, junior's ski suits, and all the lastminlamb outdoor sportswear that was a winter favorite before Pearl Harbor.

Women Train at Radio Schools

WINNIPEG, Jan. 22—Twenty-five women have begun training here to become radio operators for Trans-Canada Air Lines, recruited from the ranks of stenographers, bookkeepers, clerks and housekeepers. There are also two elevator operators, a physiotherapist and a dental nurse. They have all taken courses in recognized radio schools. Students come from Victoria, Vancouver, New Westminster, Wainwright, Winnipeg, Owen Sound and Toronto. After three months study at headquarters in Winnipeg and practice on the line, they will be appointed to duty at Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, London, Windsor, Winnipeg, Regina, Lethbridge, Calgary, Edmonton, Vancouver and other centres. They will be given regular jobs as radio operators, establishing and maintaining contact with aircraft in flight, carrying on point to point communication and at some airports serving as local weather observers. They will work under the supervision of despatchers or senior operators.

"The difficulty of obtaining male operators due to the demands of the war make it necessary for us to train additional women," says S. S. Stevens, superintendent of communications for T.C.A. who is in charge of the school. "We have received many applications from girls without experience but students must be qualified by some training in radio schools. There are two married women in the class.

Glamorize Meat Loaves For Duration of War

By MARTHA LOGAN

What's in a meat loaf? Well, that's up to you and your refrigerator. A meat loaf can be a rare and elegant thing, one of surprises and distinction, if a bit of thought goes into the planning.

No matter what else your meat market may have to offer, there's a good chance there will be some ground meat available and thinking of those dabs of this and that in your refrigerator—those leftovers you're despairing about—put them into a meat loaf, and no one will be the wiser!

As far as shape is concerned people like variety in their lives so make the loaf different each time. Meat loaf in a ring mold with the centre full of buttered peas or creamed celery or a barbecue sauce is a sight to behold. Individual meat loaves not only look nice on the plates but they take less time to bake. These can be baked in muffin tins.

The flavor is entirely up to you. Some folks like to season the meat mixture with sage and thyme or poultry seasoning. Others like a dash of Worcestershire sauce or a bit of horseradish.

And don't think a meat loaf must be 100 per cent beef either. Try mixing ground beef with the same amount of ground lean pork. (That's slipping extra nutrition into the meat, too.) Half beef, half pork is good. Or try a mixture of beef, pork and veal. And don't forget that fresh meat for a loaf, investigate the leftover situation. Ground left over meat, whether it be beef, pork, veal or lamb, can be happily combined with fresh ground meat, seasoned and made into a loaf.

Meats aren't the only things to be ground for meat loaves. How about ground raw potato? Instead? Add ½ cup ground raw carrot to the meat mixture. A little ground pickle, chopped onion, ground walnuts, boiled navy beans, mashed vegetables (just one of these, not all at once) will add to the finished product.

As to texture, there are those who want a dry loaf, and those who advocate moistness, and one of the secrets lies in the bread crumbs used. Fine crumbs make a compact loaf and need more liquid to prevent dryness. Large cubes of bread do not lose their identity and need more egg to blend the loaf together.

If your loaf is fairly-at-the-edge loaf, mound the meat mixture on a shallow round or square pan. For softer loaf, pack into a deep bread loaf pan.

Miss B. Morris Marries Airman

At a pretty wedding ceremony in the chapel of All Saints' Cathedral on Jan. 15, Miss Beatrice Evelyn Morris of Edmonton, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Morris of Gunn, Alta., became the bride of Sgt. Robert Buckmaster, R.C.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Buckmaster of Brownlee, Sask. The Rev. Canon A. M. Trendell officiated.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of white sheer fashioned with tightly girdled waist and round neckline. Her veil, held in place by white roses, fell gracefully to the hem of her dress and she carried a bouquet of pink roses and white carnations.

Miss Dorothy Morris was her sister's only attendant. She wore a frock of pink lace styled with tight waist and low neckline. Black accessories and a corsage of roses made her ensemble complete.

Attending the bridegroom was W. Murray.

A small reception was held at the Edmonton residence of the bride [illegible] 107 street.

BRIDAL GIFTS

One of the most thoughtful gifts for the wartime bride is a cedar chest for storing household and other linens she will be gathering for the new home she will have now or when the war is over. The wise bride will have washable items, such as bed and table linen and towels lightly laundered before storing and will wrap white articles in blue paper to keep them from turning yellow. Many woollens are already treated with moth-resistant preparations before purchasing but if hers are not, she may have them done at a reliable shop. Periodic airing and careful airtight wrappings are further timely precautions against invasion by these pests.

Thanks Sent To I.O.D.E. From Polish

TORONTO, Jan. 21. — Marking the opening of the second year's campaign to aid Polish refugees in Russia, General Sikorski, Prime Minister of Poland and Commander-in-Chief, has sent the following message to the War Services Committee of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire:

"Twelve months of your strenuous campaign throughout Canada for the welfare of the needy Polish women and children have yielded excellent results. It gives me much pleasure to express to the Committee and every member of your organization my sincere appreciation of noble efforts."

In the first year of their Polish relief activities, the I.O.D.E. sent $100,000 worth of clothing and bedding to relieve the suffering of Polish women and children in Russia. Details of the I.O.D.E. aiming to raise another $100,000 for Polish relief in the next year, has sent an appeal today to primary chapters of the Order, asking for used adult clothing, money to purchase blankets, shoes and underwear, and urging every member of the Order to make warm clothing and knit warm sweaters, socks, scarves and mitts.

SHIPMENT ACKNOWLEDGED

A message received from the Polish ambassador, Stanislaw Kot, from Kuybyshev, reads "Please accept acknowledgement your transport 23 cases new clothing which arrived Archangielsk. Polish citizens this country feel touched your interest in their fate which gives them courage, energy, moral support."

In an official report written recently in Kuybyshev, and referring to I.O.D.E. shipments, the statement is made: "This organization, the I.O.D.E., shows, together with an unusually high standard of administration of services, a special sympathy for the Poles."

Members of the I.O.D.E. in a message from Mrs. H. S. Angus, chairman of the War Services Committee, were reminded that the Polish people were the first innocent victims of the war. It was for Poland that Britain declared war. Poland was our first ally. Over a million Poles were transported to different areas in Russia in 1939. Thousands of families were scattered, and food and clothing became desperately scarce.

"No heart can remain unmoved by the tragedy which has struck these innocent people," Mrs. Angus wrote.

In loving memory of our Mother Laura Jane Gosling.

"What would I not give to clasp her hand,
Her dear sweet face to see,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
That meant so much to me.
You left behind an aching heart,
That [illegible]
I never [illegible]
Forget you, Mother dear."

Retailers Upheld On "Ration" Plan

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—(CP)—The prices board yesterday upheld the practice of some retailers in "rationing" certain commodities to consumers with the statement that the display of goods on a counter does not put the merchant under any obligation to sell.

The board said retailers sometimes have taken steps to ensure equitable distribution of commodities in short supply by their own rationing steps. The question had been raised whether a retailer could legally refuse to sell merchandise in his store to anyone who wants to buy.

Other rulings by the board's legal branch are:

1. An ordinary law no person need enter into any contract to buy or sell unless he wants to do so.

2. Advertising in a catalogue is simply an invitation to send an order and the order itself is merely an offer to buy, which the merchant can accept or refuse as he chooses.

$1,000,000 Loss in Prison Camp Fire

OMAHA, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Fire which destroyed 25 barracks buildings yesterday at an internment camp adjoining the Camp Carson, Colo., army training camp, caused damage estimated by army engineers at $1,000,000. The buildings were unoccupied and no one was injured.

Bloodhounds Aid Search For Twins

CARDIFF, Wales, Jan. 22.—(CP)—Bloodhounds, planes and Bren gun carriers were mobilized in a widespread search early today for 3½-year-old twins, missing more than three days in the Penmaenmawr mountains, Caernarvon, Wales. The tots, Neil and Jacqueline Colby, vanished from a farmhouse at Pennfforddd Goch, a mountain top above Dwygyfylchi village, and haven't been seen since.

Nazis Showing Increased Fear As Reds Gain

LONDON, Jan. 21—(BUP)—A Zurich dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph quoted Robert Ley, Nazi labor front leader, as telling a meeting of Nazi party district leaders at Berlin:

"I must remind you that you face destiny as masters, not slaves. It was easy for you to believe it as long as we were victorious. But now in the critical phase of the war it is revealed who are true believers. Those who show depression are cowards. If we want victory we must wage total war. All of you must yield at once any kind of personal wishes. We demand the most extreme determination as the only way to reach final victory."

On the Berlin radio, a German Eastern Front war reporter said last night:

"Oh God, give us strength to stem this flood,' I thought when I saw the heavy guns and heaviest tanks and endless columns of infantry behind them for the first time, and my heart felt cold.

"A vast tidal wave is sweeping from east to west. We have never had such a clear idea of the danger and force of the assault as in the winter months. The fact that the assault broke the German lines at several points was not a surprise and our command had built a second line of defences in order to break the Soviet advance."

"When will I be old enough to exchange all the presents I don't like?"

House Situation To Be Discussed

Edmonton's drastic housing shortage will be discussed at a special meeting of the city council called for 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

At this meeting a brief prepared by the city commissioners will be submitted for approval to the aldermen, and it is anticipated that as a result of their findings that Mayor John W. Fry will be instructed to proceed to Ottawa to lay the city's desperate housing situation before the dominion cabinet.

Repeated efforts on the part of the city to have homes built here by the Housing Ltd. have failed, although in the opinion of the commissioners the great scarcity of houses here is a great measure attributable to war conditions prevailing in the city.

Calgary Chinook Is Short-Lived

CALGARY, Jan. 22.—(CP)—A rise of 21 degrees in the Calgary temperature yesterday afternoon failed to materialize in a real break of the week-long cold snap, and by early evening the mercury was sliding back towards its early morning low of 46 degrees below zero.

That low point, registered at 5 a.m., was the coldest Calgary has felt in 27 years. The last time it sunk that low was on Jan. 27, 1916.

Highest temperature recorded yesterday was at 3 p.m. when a brief period of sunshine brought the mercury up to 25 degrees below. Sunset and a gathering wind sent the mercury back to lower levels, and at midnight the reading was -27.

Street car services were being resumed on most lines after a hectic two days which saw 26 trams hauled away to the repair shops and four Greyhound buses brought in to give service to passengers on hill runs.

Dismiss Appeal Of Reno Farmer

Appeal of Sam Szpuniarski, Reno district farmer, against conviction by Mr. Justice S. J. Shepherd and one-year-less-one-day sentence imposed on a charge of killing, by shooting three mares, was unsuccessful in appeal court Friday, the court in an unanimous decision dismissing the appeal.

The charge against Szpuniarski arose out of the shooting of three grey mares valued at $450, the property of George Dineff, on July 22 last, when they were found by the appellant trespassing on his hay land.

Szpuniarski, who was represented by V. R. Baldwin, K.C., and G. W. Baldwin, K.C., was present in the court when the dicision was rendered. He was taken into custody immediately by R.C.M.P. constables in attendance.

500,000 Axis Troops Killed On Russ Front

LONDON, Jan. 22. — (CP) — More than 500,000 Axis troops have been killed and 200,000 captured on the Russian front from Nov. 19 to Jan. 19, a Moscow broadcast recorded by The Associated Press said yesterday.

The figures were attributed to Chairman Alexander Sherbakov of the Moscow Soviet, who made the report at a meeting commemorating the 19th anniversary of Lenin's death.

In the same two-month period, it was declared, the Russians captured more than 6,000 tanks, 12,000 guns and 3,500 planes.

The announcement that 500,000 invaders had been killed and 200,000 captured since Jan. 19 followed a Moscow broadcast which Reuters News Agency quoted as saying that German dead, wounded and missing on the Russian front in the past six weeks totalled 750,000 men, including 250,000 killed.

Allies Make Heavy Attacks on Sicily

LONDON, Jan. 22.—(CP)—The Italian high command disclosed today that Allied bombers escorted by fighters had raided numerous targets on Sicily yesterday, raining bombs along the south coast of the island and the interior.

Points bombed in the Allied sweep included Licata, Porto Empedocle, Gela and Castel Vetrano, according to the broadcast Rome communique recorded here.

Italian fighters shot down a bomber and a fighter and anti-aircraft guns destroyed two more Allied craft, the communique claimed. Five Italian planes were acknowledged lost.

NEW "TYPHOON" FIGHTERS DOWN 5 NAZI PLANES

LONDON, Jan. 22. — (CP) — Five of 14 German planes shot down Wednesday in the defence of London were destroyed by new British high speed fighters named "Typhoons," the air ministry announced Thursday.

No Typhoons were lost in the battles.

The Hawker Typhoon is a product of the same firm which designed the Hurricane. It is powered by a Napier Sabre engine.

They now have been victorious over Germany's best planes, including the Focke-Wulf 190, Messerschmitt 109, Messerschmitt 210, Junkers 210 and Dornier 217.

Action Asked To End Alberta Coal Strikes

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Jan. 22—(CP)—Mayor G. E. Brock, of Prince Albert, last night sent a telegram to Prince Albert's federal member in the house of commons, Prime Minister Mackenzie King, asking the government to take "Every possible step toward settlement of the strikes in the Alberta fields."

(It was reported Wednesday that 140 men went on strike at the Atlas Mine Company, limited, in the East Coulee, Alta., field after men objected to selection of two coal leaders to undertake necessary timbering work in the mine.

(At the Midland mine at Drumheller, Alta., 50 coal miners Wednesday failed to show up for work because of severe weather.)

SHORTAGE ACUTE

The mayor's wire was sent following reports of an acute shortage of coal in the city.

Dealers reported 90 per cent. of the coal orders on the books were unfilled and that no domestic coal was made available the situation would become acute. Several citizens were reported moving out of their homes because of lack of fuel to heat them.

NAZIS REMOVING BADGE OF PARTY AS DEFEAT LOOMS

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 22.—(AP) — Travellers reaching Sweden from Germany said yesterday that many Nazis from officials down to small fry ward heelers are beginning to remove their party badges from their lapel buttonholes because they are losing faith in victory and fear the consequences.

The travellers also said they had witnessed open expressions of protest against the Gestapo treatment of the Jews and had heard Germans denounce the persecution, something they never dared do before.

R.A.F. Sweeps Over Northern France

LONDON, Jan. 22. — (CP) — Swarms of R.A.F. fighters and bombers, including R.C.A.F. Spitfires, swept Northern France and the lowlands yesterday without loss of raids on Caen, Cherbourg, Flushing and an airdrome near Le Havre. Three German planes were destroyed.

Several German planes crossed the southern coast of England last night and were met by Royal Air Force fire. There were no immediate reports of bombings.

Canadian and United States planes were part of an escort for medium bombers which bombed the German airfields at Caen and the Triqueville airport, near Le Havre the air ministry said.

Other medium bombers battered the docks at Cherbourg and at Flushing in Holland. Le Havre and Cherbourg are major French channel ports and Caen lies inland about midway between them.

Many squadrons of Spitfires also carried out offensive sweeps over Northern France.

Kinsmen Plan Auction to Aid Milk-For-Britain

Thursday evening a committee representing the Edmonton Kinsmen Club and a committee of the Edmonton Auctioneers met to discuss plans for a public auction.

Owing to the great success of the 1942 auction sale and the feeling that the citizens of Edmonton and district will give the same generous response this year, it was decided to hold a similar sale sometime in June. Tentative arrangements are now being made and details will be announced later.

As was the case last year all Edmonton auctioneers are donating their time to assure success of the sale.

In a single year, 90,000 planes arrived at and departed from Chicago's airport.

Weather Restricts War Production In Seattle Area

SEATTLE, Jan. 22.—(AP)—Most war industries in the Seattle area, except for the Boeing aircraft plants, returned to restricted production Thursday after weather conditions brought almost total paralysis for two days.

Power failures were the most important factor in shutting down the big shipyards on Harbor Island near Seattle.

Most Seattle shipyards had men working in shops and protected areas, but not outside.

Seattle's larger stores continued closed for the second day. Schools also were closed.

Enters Plea in Indecency Case

Harvey Kagna, now serving a three-year penitentiary sentence on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a juvenile, appeared in supreme court to plead to a new charge of gross indecency and to the six gross indecency charges in which the Alberta court of appeal ordered new trials.

He entered "not guilty" pleas to all the charges and elected for trial by judge without jury. Mr. Justice C. B. O'Connor ordered that trial of the charges be commenced on Feb. 4 next.

Gilbey's — Goes to War!

GILBEY'S, in peacetime a symbol of friendship and goodwill wherever men met, now switches to the offensive. Today all of our manufacturing facilities are devoted entirely to production for war purposes; and, naturally, we are proud of this important assignment.

Consequently, Gilbey's internationally famous gins may occasionally be unavailable until the "cease-fire" sounds.

As soon as conditions permit—along with those other luxuries which we now willingly sacrifice—Gilbey's Gins will again be obtainable in adequate quantities, when men of goodwill once more foregather in friendship and peace.

Proves "Hot" Idea When It Backfires

Japanese Attempt at Camouflage Proves Boomerang

New uniform and insigne of the Women Ordnance Workers look doubly snappy when worn by Marjorie Young and Pauline Geraghty of Los Angeles Army Ordnance Region.

Shipbuilder for a day, Janet Blair, movie star, peeks through the porthole which she is filing as she goes through the routine of a woman war worker at the Consolidated Shipbuilding Co. yards, in the Bronx.

These photographs picture shipments which are multiplied every day along the transcontinental lines of the Canadian National Railways. The top picture is that of a trainer plane bound for "somewhere" in Canada to be used for instructional purposes. The middle picture shows one of the thousands of Canadian-built tanks carried to the seaboard. The bottom photograph shows a set of propellers manufactured at an Ontario plant and carried to an Eastern coast shipyard now engaged on contracts for tonnage to float supplies to the countries of the United Nations. This shipyard receives all steel plates and mechanism required over the rails of the National Railways System.

Some smarty aboard a Jap transport had the bright hunch to camouflage the ship with an elaborate cloak of dry palm leaves. It proved to be a hot idea especially after U.S. bombers dropped their loads on the deck. The close-up, above, was taken by an Army Air Corps photographer and shows the ship curtained in flames from stem to stern as the palm leaf camouflage blazed up like a dry Christmas tree.

Father, Son Work For Victory

Putting the skill and experience of two generations of craftsmanship into the battle of production, Tom Morgan, left, is a welder and his dad, Jim Morgan, right, is a spray painter. They are war workers in the Canadian Ford plant and together they have 21 years of service in the one plant. Both are consistent purchasers of Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates. There are many Windsor families with representatives of two and even three generations busy on war work in this great plant which is the chief source of mechanical transport in the British Empire.

"For Valor"

"For valor and selfless service" in freedom's cause is the medal worn by Assistant Military Surgeon Vera Rakhova, of Russia.

Well Named

British flyers call it the Vengeance. Americans, who build it, call this Vultee single-engined dive bomber the A-31. Both know it is faster, more powerful than the Germans' vaunted Stuka.

Bombing of Naples

Airview from an American Army plane shows fires burning in the dock sections of Naples, Italy, after a U.S. raid on that important supply port for the Axis armies in Tunisia.

Name Unknown — At least one carrier sunk before Coral Sea battle

Japan is known to have converted several merchant ships into aircraft carriers in recent years. One or more of these may have been sunk in engagements preceding the Coral Sea battle.

This is how the U.S. and Japan compare in aircraft carrier strength after the many costly battles in the South Pacific. Mention of this type of vessel has been missing from recent reports of Solomons naval engagements, indicating that the U.S. is holding in reserve her three remaining completed carriers and that many of Japan's flat tops have suffered heavy damage in battles and raids.

Grandma's Baby is Grandson's Aunt

"I Do"

To a bridegroom 4,000 miles away Evalyn Daniel happily spoke those magic words of marriage and heard his reply come back over the wires and wave lengths from Hawaii. Telephone wedding united the bride, a Ft. Worth, Tex., aircraft worker, to George M. Shoffner, Dayton, O., aircraft engineer, now at Hickam Field, Hawaii.

Song of the Lorelei

SO YOUR HUSBAND'S GONE TO WAR!

by ETHEL GORHAM • whose husband is at war

CHAPTER 18

BECAUSE you are so lonely, so fearsome, you will find it easy to complain. When you see what looks like apathy and indifference to the war you will want to stand up and shout to all the world, "Why aren't you and you and you in it? This is supposed to be everybody's war. Why should it be only my life, my family that is disrupted?"

When you hear women lamenting bravely the new sable coat they cannot buy; when you see others who bear up with sour fortitude under the lack of a new car; when you listen to sighs over the strains of entertaining—what with liquor so costly and maids hard to get—you feel personally outraged. You want to cry out against them. And you wish there were some way you could teach them what trouble is.

Perhaps there is no way to instruct them in the ins and outs of trouble, these women who are prepared to suffer under last year's wardrobe. But hardships are not reserved only for those of us whose husbands are off to war.

It's bad business, you conclude, and waiting isn't much fun. But where is there the man, woman, or child who remains wholly untouched by what is happening?

The mother whose son is in the air force may not have the personal desperation that you have. By the time a son is war age, he and his mother are bound by ties other than purely dependent emotional ones. But a mother's special kind of grief is harrowing in its own way; her life has its own emptiness.

The unattached girl whose beaux have trotted off to various camps around the country may not be as broken up as you are, but being manless when you're single has its own deprivations. Just think — there's a slice of her youth going, going, gone.

The girl whose fiance has left to join up may not have your problems of maintaining the home, but she has something that may be worse. She has the fear without ever having had anything else. She has the racking torture of wondering whether she should have married or waited.

Because your own young man is in uniform you're going to find it hard see young men who are not. You're going to ask why. You're going to wonder and resent.

I asked a young airman whom I met on a train going up to Toronto what he thought of the civilian attitude towards troops.

"It isn't what civilians think about troops any more," he answered. "It's what the man in uniform thinks about civilians."

If a man decides not to volunteer but to wait until he is called in the draft, what could be more fair? And if he isn't in uniform and looks as if he should be, consider the chances you take in a bingo game. Not every number comes up every time.

You must be on guard against your own hurt. You must watch out for your own pride. Because you are proud even as you are hurt, as women must always be hurt when the men they love go off to war.

John X. avoided the draft, you think. Why didn't George try? What do I care about this old war and this business of bravery? John will come out of the war safe, sound, and a lot richer—and in five years everybody will forget he dodged the draft by getting a fake deferment. But George — something might happen to him and I'll be the only one left to remember.

That's what you think at one minute. Like most women in love, you prefer a living coward to a dead hero. You're no frantic, publicity-crazy, umbrella-banging, sex-starved female left over from the last war. And the game of pin-the-white-feather went out with the false armistice.

If the whole matter had been left to you, you would have preferred some way your husband could have stayed at home.

George didn't try to dodge the draft. Mark volunteered. However your husband got in it, you know it was the only way for him.

But that may not be true of your friend's husband. His eyes are bad, you know, and he couldn't see a German if he were standing smack on top of him.

Take the young man next door who is serving on the special committee that gets blanket deferment. Naturally his mother is happier that her son is doing something removed from danger. The son didn't seek out the job to save his neck. He preferred going into active service. But the job was given him by reason of training and background.

Undoubtedly in the early days there was a great hustle and rushing off to Washington to seek the cushy desk jobs that keep a man from harm. But remember the next time you want to ask a man why he isn't in uniform that the young man working on the special committee happens, for obvious reasons, not to be in khaki, while the man with the soft desk job might be sporting two stripes because he's the son of a senator who knows a general who knows the ropes.

Consider the factories working day and night. This is a war of production as well as combat. And the non-uniformed men on the production lines are some of the best young fighters in the country. If your husband were on one of the gigantic conveyor belts going full blast these days he'd be doing his duty as surely and rightly as he is now.

Incidentally, he would certainly be making more money than the army or navy chooses to pay. If you find yourself getting angry about it stop and think. Isn't it true that holding on to hard-fought wage scales is a protection for your husband when he returns?

It is true that there are many draftable young men who have gone into defense jobs for more money than they ever made in their lives before in order to insure their deferred status. They very often are smug and patriotic about the work they are doing and act as if dollars and draft-dodging played no part in their choice at all. But they are in the minority.

The man you see in the restaurant in civilian clothes may be a school teacher. He may be a doctor assigned to remain behind by the military-medical board. He may be a minister, a laboratory technician, a congressman, or an idiot. It would be laughable for youn to bang each one over the head and say, "Why aren't you in khaki, my man?"

They're all in civilian clothes, exactly where they belong. So is the 3-A husband who simply cannot leeave his family of his own free will. Nothing is more contemptible than the man who develops a completely dependent wife overnight. The clinging vines that have come to light since December seventh! Also the passion for the family that has suddenly blossomed where only sterility reigned before.

But the man with children and a dependent wife belongs at home maintaining that family until called. It may be cold comfort to you on lonely nights, but most such men are eating away at themselves and their wives because they can't go.

You'll rage against the people who say smugly, as if they were proud of their bravery, "There's just as much danger for civilians today as for the men at the front." They seem to feel that as long as they remain in the city, carrying on "business as usual," all will be forgiven in the heaven of Mars.

You know there is more danger for civilians in this war than ever before but the men in the combat zone have a bit more tricky time of it than the stroller down Michigan Boulevard.

You'll have your rages, you'll have your peeves. When emotions are as deeply stirred as a wife's by the loss of her husband you can't go along like a blooming Pollyanna. Just remember that this is total war, new product of this wonderful century, and one way or another there are an awful lot of people in it with you.

Curious World —By William Ferguson

Debunker

Contrary to usual opinion, the style of architecture in the beautiful Indian Taj Mahal is not Indian at all, but foreign. The great structure was planned by Ustad Isa, a Persian, and was designed throughout according to Persian architecture—not Indian. The outside is of white marble, and the inside of jewelled mosaic. It was built by Shah Johan for his beloved wife's tomb, and cost around 15 million dollars.

Insurance on Life Of Hanged Slayer Is Declared Void

TORONTO, Jan. 22—(CP)—Mr. Justice C. P. Plaxton yesterday delivered a judgment declaring null and void the $3,500 life insurance policies held by Gordon Ross Mathew, who was hanged at Brampton two years ago for the murder of his wife.

Toronto lawyers said the judgment was without precedent in Canada. Mr. Justice Plaxton, whose reasons for judgment will be delivered later, dismissed the action of Matthew's sister against the Prudential Insurance Company which refused to pay on the ground that death at the hands of the law is not death within the meaning of the insurance policies.

hospital in favor of a housing project of such pitifully inadequate dimensions.

In Edmonton alone the building of 150 small houses would scarcely scratch the surface of the housing problem. And the housing shortage is province-wide and dominion-wide in scope.

Imagine what kind of scramble there would be if the government announced that 150 families would be permitted to build homes. On what basis and by what methods could the authorities proceed in the selection of the lucky families?

Housing, in this total war, is a national problem, and attempts to apply a solution by such feeble methods would lead only to public dissatisfaction and charges of discrimination. On the other hand no one disputes the need for a tuberculosis hospital. Half a million dollars worth of housing, unless in the form of barracks or dormitories, wouldn't commence to solve Edmonton's housing problem but the proposed sanatorium will be of lasting value to the people as a whole.

Another contention is that it may be unwise to build the sanatorium at this time because of the shortage of doctors and nurses. Following this reasoning to its logical termination, one is forced to conclude that although people are admittedly in great need of treatment for this dread disease, it is better to make no effort at all to care for them than to provide facilities that may be operated under a certain amount of difficulty.

Doctors say that in the modern, diet and fresh air treatment of tuberculosis, constant attendance of physicians, as with most other diseases, is not necessary. In the early, curable stage it is largely a case of rest, proper food, air and sunlight. Under this treatment the facilities, or the institution itself, is the all-important thing.

Beacon Credit Union Meeting

The annual meeting of the Beacon Credit Union was held in the Calder Community Hall, on Monday when it was decided to vote a three per cent dividend to shareholders, also a return to borrowers of 10 per cent of the interest paid in 1942.

C. A. Somers, the president, was chairman, but due to the severe cold weather prevailing, only a small percentage of the membership attended the meeting.

Mr. Somers gave a report on the general activities of the union, and the reports of the supervisory and credit committees were given by W. Rankin and A. Foxall.

Due to the resignation of Mr. Somers, and W. Quiller also retiring, it was necessary to elect two members for the board of directors. E. W. Mills and R. Hurman were elected.

M. Rankin was re-elected to the supervisory committee and M. L. Pirot re-elected to the credit committee.

Comprising the board of directors for 1943 are W. E. Morrison, A. L. Nikey, H. E. Dominy, E. W. Mills and R. Hurman.

The credit committee is A. Foxall, N. Jackson and M. L. Pirot.

The supervisory committee is W. E. Briggs, W. Rankin and M. Rankin.

Charles Gould was guest speaker, who gave a talk on the activities of credit unionism, not only in Canada, but over the entire world.

This branch now has 179 members and during the year 1942 the total of $10,019 was loaned.

Legion Chief Returned for Second Term

H. E. Tanner, well known city high school teacher, will head the Edmonton branch of the Canadian Legion B.E.S.L. for his second consecutive term, having been unanimously returned as president at the annual meeting of the branch held in the Memorial hall Thursday. Mr. Tanner was unopposed, as R. W. McLaren, M.M., a former president, withdrew from the contest, to urge the unanimous election of Mr. Tanner.

W. "Paddy" Griffin, popular welfare officer of the Legion branch here for several years is the new first vice-president of the branch, succeeding J. McLean, who did not stand for re-election this year. Because of illness Mr. Griffin was absent from the meeting.

W. "Bill" Williams, who recently returned from overseas, where he served three years with the Edmonton Regiment and the Royal Canadian Corps or Signals, is the new 2nd vice-president.

GREAT WAR VET

A veteran employee of the provincial government, Mr. Williams was prominent in Legion affairs here for years before the present war and has had experience previously as a member of the executive. He is also a veteran of the First Great War, having served in the British Imperial Army with the Welsh Guards and the Royal Air Force.

He succeeds Alex Riddell as 2nd vice-president, the latter having announced his retirement at the recent nominating meeting.

The six members of the executive for 1943, elected by ballot at Thursday's meeting are: E. Goodenough, A. Riddell, S. Bowcott, T. Moorhouse, G. Scott and R. W. McLaren. There were 15 candidates.

Mr. Tanner thanked the membership for the high honor of serving as president for the second term.

He said he felt the Legion is destined to pay a big part in the future of Canada. In delivering his presidential report for the past year Mr. Tanner stressed the Legion convention in Winnipeg as a highlight. He noted the grave loss suffered by the organization in death of Maj. A. P. Chattell, D.S.O.

Formation of a new veterans' branch from an organization of Second Great War Veterans was an accomplishment of the year that has caused satisfaction.

FREE OF DEBT

Announcement that the branch here is entirely free of debt was received with enthusiasm. The financial position of the branch is an extremely strong one the report of the auditor covering the past fiscal year revealed.

The branch holds Dominion government bonds with a par value of $15,000 and purchased $5,000 in Victory Bonds during the past year.

Total membership of the branch now stands at 832 and it seems certain membership will go far above the 1,000 mark in 1942.

Report of Secretary-Manager J. H. Van Sickle was also received with applause. Revenue from the Poppy Day sale and other activities have been particularly gratifying during the past year.

The new slate of officers will be installed at a special meeting in the Memorial hall on the evening of Tuesday, Jan. 26.

8,000 Persons Are On U.K. Missions In United States

LONDON, Jan. 22.—(CP)—Sir Kingsley Wood, chancellor of the exchequer, told the House of Commons yesterday that the staffs of various British wartime missions now in the United States total about 8,000 persons, of whom about three-quarters were hired in the places where their offices are set up. The organization of all such missions is being reviewed to see if economies can be effected, he said.

Bus Operator Is Fined for Passing Limits

Operating a bus out of Wetaskiwin within a radius greater than the 35 mile limit set down by the transport controller brought a fine of $10 and costs to George Kaiser, Wetaskiwin, in R.C.M.P. traffic court Thursday.

Kaiser appeared before Magistrate H. Hawe, K.C., in city police court. He pleaded guilty to the offence.

Seven other motorists, mainly truck drivers, were convicted for various breaches of the highway regulations.

William B. Mix, Vermilion, and Peter W. Hoogers Jr., Pickardville, were fined $10 and costs each for failing to display their names and weight limits on the outside of the truck doors.

FINED FOR LIGHTS

No clearance lights on the body of his truck brought a fine of $10 and costs to Peter Majeau, Gunn, and no tail light on his car resulted in a fine of $3 and costs against William Ryan, Edmonton.

John Fedyna, Edmonton, failed to place flares on the highway when he was forced to stop for more than 10 minutes, and was fined $15 and costs.

Andrew Edinga, Gwynne, paid a fine of $10 and costs, after pleading guilty to hauling a passenger in his truck, and Harry Morton, Edmonton, was fined $5 and costs for using a car bearing a "dealer's" license for purposes other than those specified under the regulations.

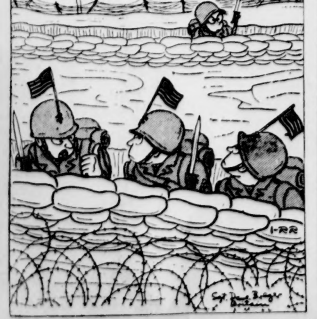

The traffic charges were laid by the R.C.M.P. highway traffic patrol, working out of Edmonton under the direction of Cpl. James Muir.
